

Winter 1971

President, Thomas C. Demakis; Secretary, Robert H. Gillmore, 2 Perrotto Ave., Claremont, N.H. 03743; Agent, Charles E. Potts, II

Secretary Gillmore reports:

From Tom Beach, a September letter too late for the last Review:

"My fortuitous assignment with the Office for the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (OCHAMPUS) has been blissfully free from the usual military harassment. And with somewhat warmer playgrounds as possible assignments, Denver is just not such a bad place to be.

"Pam and I are looking forward to one more year here, courtesy of the Army, mostly for the unequalled skiing, camping and general Marlboro Country atmosphere. Then it's back east, hopefully to graduate school in regional planning for both of us. We're expecting, or rather Pam is (I'm mostly watching from the bench), a son in December. Period.

"Peg and Steve Poindexter '69 actually live here, too, while he starts his second year at DU Law. (I was there for two quarters before my body rejected the combination of army and grad school. Steve is deferred.)

"When you live in the swingiest city between Last Chance and Gypsum, it's inevitable that a few Ephmen should show up, at least on their way TO somewhere. Meg and Eddie Nichols arrived in town during the summer, to stay 'for at least five years' while he is with IBM. Prep-school grid mentor, Lowell Davis forsook his self-imposed solitude for 37 hours and thrilled the Nichols and Beaches with stories of his life as a game warden and castle keep in the Minnesota wilderness.

"Bob Trent '67 managed to escape the filmy atmosphere of fun city for a brief weekend (he's a NYU Ph.D. candidate in English, but he said not to mention it) in Denver's pure air. A few days later, he was followed by Trav Auburn, who was returning from a few months of active duty at Ft. Ord. It sounded as if he had spent more time on the courts than in a uniform, and his tan was sickening. Pfc. Auburn kept saluting me (a Spec. 5), but he finally straightened things out."

Tony DeWitt is taking Army Infantry training at Ft. Ord, Calif., and expects Vietnam duty in March.

Bob Lux, on the USS Chipola, spent December in Sasebo, Japan (wherever that is), and planned to return to Suki Bay, Luzon, Philippines, in early January for "Vietnam line runs" and to revisit Taipei and Hong Kong. Bob is applying to "several law schools in the Northeast" but doesn't expect to be out of the Navy until spring 1972. He "missed a rendezvous with former Dean John Hyde '52 in Hong Kong by only two days."

Mal Grant, out of the Navy since early October, is "still in Rhode Island . . . working for Chrysler until fall when I'll start law school at UConn. Haven't seen anyone from Williams since last fall. Not much new — no kids, same wife, same address, spending a lot of time on Narragansett Bay recently — we've caught the sailing bug. See you up off the Maine coast next summer if you're in the area."

Spencer Beebe's father (Robert L. '34) updates us on his son's sailing bug: (Spencer), "almost out of the Peace Corps, in Punta Renas, Costa Rica, has nearly completed a 30-foot ketch with help from Peace Corps friend Phil Hoysradt of Gloucester. They plan to sail it this spring through the Panama Canal, the Bahamas and up the Atlantic Coast."

Tony Bliss will be "working at the Huntington Library, San Marino (Birch County), Calif., until March, then fleeing to France." He's seen Clark Hulse '69, at Claremont Graduate School, in the library.

John Davis is a "sales trainee for GAF Corporation in Chicago" and plans to "relocate to Atlanta in February."

Chris Dornin is still teaching and coaching at the Harley School, Rochester. He met Steve Fisher sailing and crewed for defending national champion Jim Miller at the Thistle Nationals.

Dave Earle is "changing jobs . . . to places unknown, to write and make films. Another Williams man cops out!"

Steve Forrester ex-'68, now has an economics B.S. from Portland State University (where former Political Science Prof. Frederick Schumann teaches). He was "on the staff of a reform city council candidate who lost by 1,300 votes." He is now "legislative assistant to a state senator who's running for majority leader."

In law schools: Tom Bell will graduate from Wisconsin in June and then join the Wisconsin Bar. "Starting Aug. 1," he'll begin "a year as a clerk for Federal District Court Judge Earl Larson in Minneapolis." Tom saw Bob Bendick, Randy Dygert, Bill Shapiro, Bob Stanton, Ross Wilson '69 and Bob Groban '70 at the Amherst game. "All seem to be withstanding all attempts by the world to make them lose their individual and collective optimism," he says. Tom was in Jeff Stiefler's wedding the week after the Amherst game.

Bill Blanchard, at Vanderbilt, is "trying to find a job in a New England firm. He was at homecoming with wife Joanne and bumped into ex-roommate Tom Chapman, John Fulkerson and ex-coach and freshman State Representative Jay Healy. "Glad to report," Bill writes, "that Jan and Charlie Potts have a baby boy, R. Spenser, and I can't wait to see him."

Geoff Connor is first-year Harvard with Clark McFadden and Henry Hecht, who reports that "the unquitos (sic) Clint Wilkins came up to Cambridge to look at schools." Bob Heiss is finishing at Harvard and job hunting in Washington. He sees Bill Smith at Harvard Divinity School. Dick Hiersteiner, at Harvard too, reports that Dave Sipress is a "cartoonist for Boston After Dark." He's seen Larry Levien (at Harvard), Bram Jelin and Howie Steinberg.

Bob Gault and Paul Allison are in their last semester at Michigan; Mike Hall is "half-way" through.

Dave Marcello "went to New York City for a week, expenses paid by Tulane Law, to compete in National Moot Court Competition." Dave saw Art Cambouris and 'Pancho' at Columbia Law; Bob Claridge, Yale Law; and phoned Howie Steinberg, NYU Med School; Jim Walsh, reporting at the North Adams Transcript; and Dan Moorhead '67, working for an Waltham environmental firm.

Ned Perry writes: "Upon being detached (from the Navy) I took a swing through Africa on my way home, climbing Mt. Kilimanjaro and watching the installation of an African chief in the jungles of Ghana. Reaching the states at the end of August I jumped into State Representative Mary Newman's campaign for Massachusetts secretary of state. Having come out on the short side of that race — though not by much — I hope to complete two projects before entering law school next fall: learning how to fly a plane and building a fish hatchery in New Hampshire. Saw Pancho working on the campaign of Kevin White '52. Paul Allison finishing up a summer of law intern work in Boston, and Jim Roe laboring at Harvard Business School."

At med schools:

Henry Drinker, at U.Va., writes that he hunts often with Pete Rice.

Jim Love, at Duke, "spent a rewarding summer, working with nine of the country's top doctors in pediatric cardiology." Jim played rugby and planned to play basketball this winter.

Paul Christopherson, at Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, is engaged to Elizabeth "Tiz" Good, a Wellesley senior from Summit, N.J.

Jim Churchill planned to start Chicago's Social Science Divisional Master's Program in January. "I ran into Perry Griffin '69 in Aspen, Colo., when I was driving from D.C. to L.A. He was working as a fishing guide. Twenty years of schooling and you put yourself on the day shift, or something. I shouldn't talk, though. Since I've graduated from Pomona, I've been a bum, a teacher, a camping counselor, a graduate student, a bum, a field representative for the National Council on Hunger and a bum, in two-and-a-half years."

Glenn Everhart is "still at Penn writing some computer software in my not-very-copious spare time. Saw John Angle over Thanksgiving — drove around Wilmington, saw Andrew Wyeth's place in Chadd's Ford. He's at Michigan now; said he found Columbia lacking in some aspects of sociology . . ."

Charlie Gordon, in his third year at Minnesota Architecture School.

Mark Duffy ex-'68 writes: "Released from active duty, U.S. Navy Aug. 3. Worked in Philly as a truck driver and meat packer this fall. Returning to Williams for Winter Study Project '71 to complete my education (?). Saw Dick Dickerson in Guam last spring and Dave Snyderman, in third year Penn Med. Hope to see Pancho this winter if he returns for a b-ball weekend." Duff is "single, 24" with a "chick in Poughkeepsie" and "two years of Navy Reserve meetings left to do, probably with a unit in Pittsfield."

Topper Holden married Jane V. Standard in July and "spent the rest of the summer in Spain." The Holdens live in Hartford, where Jane teaches high school and, Topper says, "I inch toward my B.A. in Spanish at the University of Hartford." They often see Doug Dorschug, also ex-'68.

Your secretary, while having his body checked in the Virginia University Medical Center, ran into Robbie Jones '66 in a wheel chair. No, he wasn't sick — just occupying the only available seat while directing the traffic of seminude grad students also getting their bodies checked. Robbie gave me the knowledgeable lowdown on Charlottesville's "outstanding" restaurants. That didn't take too long: Charlottesville, as Robbie said, doesn't have any "outstanding" restaurants, or, for that matter, outstanding bars or outstanding women — all of which, though, is very conducive to study. And for that I am grateful."

At a cocktail party I also ran into Guy Horsley, back from Alaska (and the Army) and now in the law school year — as is Bill Shapiro.

And, finally, I spent a very memorable Saturday-after-Thanksgiving in New York. Walking, in the morning, up Madison Ave. I met and spoke briefly with Faculty Dean Dudley Bahlman, who was waiting for the "Cloisters" bus. Then, after taking my first long look at Central Park, I went into St. Thomas Church for the wedding of ex-roommate Mark Decamp to Jo-Anna Cerniglia (who, by the way, is beautiful). Other ex-roommate Jim Barns was best man. Mark is still in chemistry at Princeton and Jim is still, like Vachel Lindsay, on his voyages across America. I talked with Chemistry Prof. and Mrs. (William) Moomaw '59 at the reception.

Then over to Third Avenue. And there he was: neck-length sandy hair, dungaree pants and jacket, Peter Fonda glasses and two day's beard. All I could think of was "Midnight Cowboy." After about three years it was former Record editor/colleague John Stickney.

Because Life, he said, was losing money, the honeymoon with "the youth thing" was over. And Stick, who had, I think, three bylines in two years, now "couldn't talk them into anything." So he quit.

And now, living off a publisher's advance, he is producing "book one" — on, loosely, the counter culture. He spent three months travelling cross-country and living with radical groups — mainly listening and writing it down later. He isn't planning a "polemic" — there have been enough of those — "but basically reportage," of which there has been little. We found a bar and chewed the subject over for a couple hours.

Also talked by phone with David Schulte, who says he actually likes Yale Law.

A check through the nine editions of Class of '68 Notes since commencement indicates that we have never heard either from or about: Pete Abrahams, Dick Browne, John Counelis, Arnie Cover, Ed Gallagher, Nick Iliff, Dan Jacoff, Dan Kingman, Jim Lowenthal, Sandy McVic, Morgan Niels, Nak Paik, Jan Rais, Jeff Rothenberg, Westy Saltonstall, Dan Sullivan, Carl Van Brunt, Jake Van Dyken, Bob Wilkins, Dave Williams and Bill Williams. Compared to other classes, of course, this number of "unknown" is small.

'69

President, Johan L. Hinderlie; Secretary, Eric D. Kelly, 700 West 17th St., Pueblo, Colo. 81003; Agent, Lowell S. Smith

Secretary Kelly reports:

Can any of you imagine your class secretary preparing class notes on his honeymoon? Well maybe YOU can but I somehow could not, so we ('69, '69, rah-rah-rah) missed the deadline and if you read these notes this winter it is due only to the patience of the alumni office staff . . .

At long last we have heard from Frank (Mr. Trivia) Ferry who showed his unswerving, unflinching (i.e., blind) loyalty to Williams, to WMS and to Carter House by returning for the December trivia contest. After a year at WOSH radio (Oshkosh, Wis., "home of Oshkosh B'Gosh Overalls and Leach Garbage Trucks") pouring out the Frank Ferry Affair ("this is the Fun-One plus 49, WOSH . . . keep on chooglin") and a short stint with a station in New Jersey, Frank is giving up the DJ spin to become a social studies teacher. He is currently at home in Glen Rock, N.J., picking up education credits.

As always Frank provided not a little news. He reports that Rich Steinberg was in Oshkosh last summer, and "we hit most of the 900 bars in town — struck up a fast friendship with a topless go-go dancer who could do the funky chicken."

"I got together with brother Scott Paist," Frank goes on, "in Madison most every week. He was picking up premed courses at the University of Wisconsin. (He's been accepted for next year now somewhere or other.)"

"Mike Himowitz and Dave Reid are both writing for the Providence Journal. Catman is figuring angles to break into the 'True Confessions' racket. Keith Cunningham is still playing the wolf of Wall Street. Bruce Healy '68 is married and ensconced at Rockefeller University. Gary Paulson wound up six months' active duty with the National Guard and rumor has it he is thinking about business school again. Jim 'The Giant' Lapierre has seemingly fallen into disfavor with the Great Kahuna, is thinking about forsaking the islands and is looking forward to playing hockey again. Craig Walker is making good at Cornell Law. The aforementioned Scott Paist is now at the London School. Bob Young is at Cornell Med and Bob Cronin is still teaching at Pine Cobble. I saw them and Henry Walker (MIT) at the wedding of Bob Ware '70 in late December."

Our thanks to Frank Ferry for diminishing the ranks of the missing. Just keep right on chooglin.

Jack Heckscher writes from Ohio that he is teaching 4th - 6th graders at a private but coed elementary school outside Cincinnati. He teaches "drugs, sex and understanding people . . ." He is also working on his masters in education at Xavier University.

Also teaching is Alan Dittrich, still at St. Paul's in Concord, N.H. Al hopes to return to Oxford for another summer of study. He has been licensed as an auctioneer in Marblehead but provides no details . . .

Chris Kinnell remains in the Baltimore Public Schools (6th grade) and writes, "frustrating but inspiring, tiring but energizing, slow but superstonic."

Rikk Larsen is now a first-year student at Harvard Business. He writes, "My wife Pam and I are happy to announce our adoption of a son, Tage."

Also in Boston is Tom Gustafson, who has now dropped out of divinity school. He says that he sees many classmates in the city — next time tell us who, Tom.

Bill Hoffman writes, "After 13½ months of mystery in the Orient (Williams in Hong Kong), I've been playing student again at Fletcher (School of Diplomacy, Tufts U.). I'm studying in a program called International Development Studies (along with Rob MacDougall and Red Jeffrey). Hugh McCormick apparently did not get enough mystery during his year in Hong Kong, so he will discontinue his M.A. program to head back to Asia." Bill also notes that he will go to Yugoslavia this summer to research his thesis.

Also traveling in the Orient is Lanny Maxwell, now an ensign in the Navy. He says the journey is "slowly stretching my mind to reasonable proportions." Another '69 officer-type is Al Kelsey who graduated from Coast Guard OCS a year ago. He is now helping run "search and rescue" for New York Harbor. He and his wife Jan (Vassar '70) are living on Governor's Island, "an oasis off Manhattan."

Phil Dunn was in OCS with Al and is now stationed with the Coast Guard in Duluth, Minn., (which coast is that ON, Phil?). He will get out in the fall and is now applying to law schools. Phil says he saw Steve Rensch, "who seems to enjoy married life and teaching in Milwaukee."

Rob Brokaw writes from the Canal Zone, his current duty station with the Army. He spent seven months at the Spanish language school in Washington and is now teaching at the School of the Americas (where, he writes, Castro was trained). He expects to have time to travel and says he may get an embassy assignment.

Back on the home front Jack Jacobs seems to have things under control at the University of Texas (Austin) where he says he is "disgusted by the inverse proportion of football to education (Hook 'em)." He inquires about Marc Rogers, whose whereabouts are currently unknown to your class secretary.

Charlie Wolcott writes from Burlington, "After a month in the Cascades at the (Johan) Hinderlie establishment, Holden Village in Washington, a fantastic place, I've spent two months sniffing sewer lines — as part of a summer fellowship with the Department of Community Medicine, University of Vermont. Even in Vermont our pollution problems are overwhelming. A beginning — zero population growth."

From Washington Ron Goyette writes that he has earned a BA in philosophy and now has 3½ years of theology left to complete his studies for the priesthood.

Michael (that's how he signed it) Goodbody is now an underwriter in the Municipal Bond Department at Bankers Trust, New York. He has finished his six months active duty and now hopes to take off for Switzerland to ski. Mike reports that he has seen Paul Shullenberger and Terry Palmer in N.Y.C., and that "Jeff Piehler's wife cooks great food."

Ken Price, now living in Denver, writes, "Judi and I climbed Pikes Peak a couple of weeks ago, thirteen miles from 6,500 ft. to 14,110 ft. On top we found a parking lot, souvenir stand, heliport, cog railway depot, coffee shop and an Army research station studying effects of high elevation on human performance and behavior."

Mike Claypool is in Sierra Leone, West Africa, with the Peace Corps. He is principal of a high school but has also supervised school and home construction, because he is the only person available who can read blue prints. The construction helps to meet a severe housing shortage and also provides employment for many students.

John Liles has earned his M.B.A. at Michigan State, and, following a 1-Y rejection from the Army, he worked as export manager for a small industrial firm near Bonn, Germany. He has now returned to Detroit.

From Washington Denny Chapman reports that he is working with the National VISTA Alliance, "to save VISTA and try to make it a more powerful tool for social and institutional change."

Tom Goodbody is now a reporter for the Record, a big daily in New Jersey. He reports that he is engaged to Sandra Toll of Philadelphia, whom he met while studying at Penn last year.

Pat Dunn is back in Seattle, temporarily, following several months of effort on the Hoff campaign in Vermont. Pat will head for N.Y.C. in February where he will be an aide to Mayor Lindsay.

Gary Eliot has changed jobs and is now a producer/director with WBZ-TV, Channel 4 in Boston.

THE MISSING: As a new feature in each issue, your secretary will arbitrarily select the names of several classmates who have NOT been heard from or of in the past year. When you return your postcards, send news about yourself, but also send word

Daniel M. Sherbok '66, rabbi of Temple Micah of Denver and chaplain of the Colorado State House of Representatives, will be ordained next month as a reform rabbi at the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, and will receive a masters of Hebrew letters. From June to September he will be an assistant rabbi at Temple Beth Israel in Melbourne, Australia, and in October will begin a doctorate program in philosophy of religion at Cambridge University in England.

who will receive his M.D. from Tulane in May.

Charlie Haynes has volunteered to stay another year in the Peace Corps in Kimilili, Kenya. Charlie is the assistant headmaster of the Temerini Secondary School and also a math teacher.

Paul Streiker is in New York City, reporting for Restaurant News, and eating very well.

Also doing a third year in the Peace Corps is Pat O'Donnell. Pat returned to the States for a Christmas vacation but is now back in Togo where he is doing rural development.

Dennis Sullivan is with the Air Force in Dayton, Ohio, a place "strongly reminiscent of Troy, N.Y., with all that implies." His work consists of "establishing the figures over which the cost overruns run . . . a lot of laughs."

Nick Lang and his wife Kathy have returned from a two-year stint with the Foreign Service in Yugoslavia, where Nick did consular and occasional political work. Nick's next post will be with "that bureaucratic labyrinth," the State Department, as desk officer for Romanian Affairs.

Jack Hunt is on the downhill side of his Navy stint. He will remain in Pensacola until August, and then pursue an M.B.A. after his discharge.

Chuck Glasmire is still teaching at Kingswood School in Connecticut. Also at Kingswood is Wally Wilson, "who closely resembles Paul Bunyan with his full face of hair and absence of same on top." Chuck's tennis team placed eighth in the Nationals last year.

Van Hawn will go to work with Davis, Polk, and Wardwell in New York beginning the first of June. He reports seeing in the new year with Chris Covington and Bobo Olsen, amidst the breaking of much crockery.

David Saylor, currently clerking for a federal judge in Honolulu, attended Bob Healy's wedding in May. Bob is now an expatriate living in Halifax, Nova Scotia. Also at the wedding was Jon Wulp. In November Dave visited Jeff Modesitt and wife Jody and reports that the Modesitt children made him feel old. Anyone looking for a place to land in Hawaii should call Dave at 546-5752.

David Rikert spent a rocky fall. Still teaching at Mt. Hermon, David masterminded a climbing program there and had his program accredited as a regular sport. He and his entourage visited many of the important climbing areas in the East, including the Gunks in Poughkeepsie and White Horse Ledge in North Conway, N.H. Tryfan, a June arrival to the Rikert family, is not skiing or climbing yet, but has at least found that arms are useful appendages. David also tells of seeing Warner Fletcher (first year law student at B.U.) and wife Mary several times this fall.

Bill McClung writes that he is still teaching high school math at a private school in the Bronx, where he plans to teach for another year before returning to Ph.D. studies in math at Columbia. Bill ran into Bob Trent on 46th Street, and reports that Bob is still pursuing "the elusive Ph.D." at NYU. Bill also ran into Howie Klee and his wife, Bonnie, in Cambridge. Howie is in his fourth year of a chemical engineering Ph.D. program at M.I.T. while his wife teaches music in Cohasset, Mass.

John Olmsted has made it out of the Army and has spent the time since driving around the West Coast and across the country. John describes his motivational level as "way down," and feels that skiing and hockey might run into the golf season, which would place him somewhere at the end of the summer. Work? "It doesn't sound pleasant." John bumped into John Arnold during his travels, and reports that John has been living in a converted telephone truck since his discharge from the Army. John's plans are just as loose as Olmie's.

Bill Crane is a first-year law student at B.U. and is living with his wife at Wheelock where they are residence counselors.

Jon Lovell writes that he is still in Wilmington, Del., where he plans to spend another year before returning to school for more work in English. Jon reports that two of the students he taught in Hong Kong are applying to Williams—both women. Bill Glendaniel, in Hong Kong with the Navy, will be visiting with other pupils of Jon's.

Bob Steele married Bev Bennet on Feb. 13, and is now working for General Life in Hartford.

Having problems with worms? Call Bob Plunket. Bob is now working for the Screwtop Worm Eradication Center in Taos, N.M., doing advanced research in tropical diseases caused by worms. Bob writes of his impending marriage to Naomi Zussman of Perth Amboy, N.J., but no date has been set.

Damon Hart is out of the Navy and "greatly enjoying civilian life." Damon writes that Jeff Bowen is soon to leave Vietnam for a more leisurely Air Force job in the States.

Jon Vipond is clerking for the presiding judge of the Commonwealth Court in Pennsylvania, where he is doing some political work, getting little sleep, and working very hard. He was in Tucker Harrison's wedding along with Chris White, who is working for Ralph Nader, and Phil Bolton, who is at Johns Hopkins in International Affairs.

Ron Matthews is stationed north of Dallas as an Air Force maintenance officer and is seriously considering making the military a career.

Al Stern finished his masters of education at the U. of Chicago last August and is now teaching in an experimental program in the inner city. For his 25th birthday Uncle Sam presented him with a 1-Y.

Fred Sleezer is teaching at Penn. State, Ogontz Campus, in Philadelphia. Fred's future plans are somewhat stymied by an impending stint with the Army Reserves.

John Way is doing alternate service as a conscientious objector and has held two jobs the past year. He first worked with migrant workers in the Northern Peninsula of Michigan and then switched to the Chicago chapter of the Medical Committee for Human Rights, where he still is. He can be reached through the Student Health Organization in Chicago.

John Kelleher is with the Army and stationed at the Dang Ha combat base in Vietnam. He hopes to escape by May or June and return to U.Va. Law School next fall.

Second Lieutenant Richard J. Pas recently completed a nine-week Infantry Officer Basic Course at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga. Before entering the Army he was employed by the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., as an attorney and economist.

Another news release reports that U.S. Air Force First Lieutenant David M. Boggers has been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross for aerial achievement in Southeast Asia. He was cited for his "outstanding performance as a C-130 Hercules cargo-troop carrier aircraft pilot. Despite intense ground fire and hazardous weather conditions, he directed numerous air strikes against enemy supply vehicles."

Harry Schooley has been appointed chairman of the history department at the Buffalo Seminary and has published political cartoons for the Foreign Policy Association of New York. Harry reports that Chris White is a godfather for his son, Harry IV.

Up, Up and Away Dept.: Yours truly managed to escape Boston for a week in Aspen for what seemed to be a quasi reunion for '67's and '68's. Present and unaccounted for were David Shepler, Tad Piper '68, Ted Ragsdale '68, Bill Gardner '66, and Guy . . . Williams '68.

Editor's Note:
The following member of the Class of 1967 is on the missing list. If you know of his whereabouts, please inform the Society of Alumni: Edward G. Helm, II.

'68 President, Thomas C. Demakis; Secretary, Robert H. Gilmore, 1365 Gordon Ave., Charlottesville, Va. 22903; Agent, Thomas H. Pierce

Secretary Gilmore reports: Some of you forgot to sign your return post cards this time. I guessed at the authorship of a few; others, alas, remain a mystery, and rather than report, "Someone is

Gradman '67 Wins Graduate Fellowship

Barry Alan Gradman '67, a Ph.D. candidate at Brandeis University in English literature, has received a Dissertation Fellowship from the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation. The grants, which average $3,700, enable the Fellows to devote full attention to the research and writing of their dissertations.

A Phi Beta Kappa at Williams, Gradman has proposed as a dissertation title: "Dying into Life: The Idea of Metamorphosis in Keats' Poetry."

Fellowships totaling $250,000 were awarded to 65 candidates at 39 universities.

Spring 1971

finishing law school," I left them aside.

Weddings and babies:

Bob Arbeit married Susan B. Abelson Dec. 20 in Villanova. Gordie Juan and Steve Phillips attended.

Bob Cricenti married — I hope this spelling's right! — Rabitah Hanoern Zamudin Feb. 14 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. Bob is now home working.

John Kinabrew says wife Carolyn had her first baby Feb. 21 — an 8-lb., 5-oz boy.

Charlie Lambert has fathered 6-month-old Nathaniel Hiscoe. He writes: "After teaching eighth grade for seven months, decided that wasn't my ecological niche. 'Was hired as pollution control officer for Nashua, N.H., Health Department last July . . . and otherwise have become firmly entrenched in the establishment."

Scott McCulloch, home from the Peace Corps, says he has "joined the U.S. Capitol Police Force for a brief spell. The Bomb was not my doing! I didn't even know that bathroom existed!" Scott saw Trav Auburn, Curt Tyler and Jon Weller over New Years. "They were all drinking, making a try at reliving the old days," says Scott. "I wish they'd tell me if I had a good time."

John Reznick will be engaged April 18 to Alicia Gonzalez.

An unsigned card (presumably from Tom Pierce) says: "Hired by CBS in New York as sales account exec for WCBS-FM, a progressive rock station. Also, thank goodness, I'm into creative stuff — commercials, presentation tapes, audio sales presentations. Fantastic job! Back to WCFM for boost-in-FM-power ceremonies with Gordy Sulcer '65. Have moved into El Gordo's penthouse suite as he shifts into H.M. (holy matrimony). Better social life in one week at CBS than in 24 years: gorgeous secretaries!"

Tad Piper is first year, Stanford B School with classmates Tom Haack and John Taylor, both '67. Tad "managed to avoid draft with 'bad back'." He reports Jeff Stiefler is "currently working for himself in property development — fully armed with a Harvard M.B.A." Tad's wife is "expecting new little Piper (No. 2) in August."

Garrett Thornburg vacationed in Europe before a month-long safari in Rhodesia and Zambia. He is now assistant project manager, Continental Homes, Jamaica.

Ned Williams says he "left Marine Midland Bank for (of all things) the brokerage business with Hornblower and Weeks. 'Have seen a very hairy-faced Denny Kelly, who smashes everything in sight with a little wooden gavel but seems happy with his legal endeavors. Westy Saltonstall '65, on the other hand, has given up law and taken on the cloth — for all of you who just had heart attacks, he loves the textile industry."

Bob McCloud is living in Stratford, Conn., and editing the weekly Stratford News. Bob dined recently with Tony Kronman, who is, says Bob, "writing a philosophy thesis at Yale."

Dave Todd (I presume — another unsigned one) was "recently appointed Wisconsin correspondent for the Minneapolis Tribune." Dave was with AP in Madison.

Tony Bliss left for France March 20 "to join unemployed expatriates."

Scott Fields reports: "Living in N.Y.C. Finished master of fine arts, Columbia. Wrote a book, Remote Control. At present revising a paper on Blake and the alchemical Nigredo; writing a novel, Chinchilla Warp; splitting to Puerto Rico and the Yucatan very soon. I've been living with John DeMarco; rather he's been living here, too, getting his hands dirty at the Horn of Plenty Restaurant, hoping to leave America very soon."

From (again, a guess) John Odden: "Working in alumni and admissions office at Andover. Also coaching hockey. Dick Means and Dick Eide all came up to play some squash."

Rick Rhodes, still in New Mexico, writes: "Fractured my skull on a truck drive down an arroyo, so I'm on vacation . . . My wife and I are learning first-hand how the white man cheats the Indian of his humanity." The Rhodes see Jerry Seidenwurm and wife "all the time."

In law schools:

Trav Auburn finished his second year at Conn in January.

Bill Blanchard, at Vanderbilt, is still coaching lacrosse. He has a "job with a Wall Street firm — actually 11 Broadway" and is "looking forward to living in Manhattan."

Jim Boynton just finished "a glorious trip to Aspen, Colo., to celebrate impending completion of (Penn) law school in May." He'll start work in N.Y.C. in September.

From Mal Grant: "Well, I quit Chrysler — being a junior junior exec in a big corp. just doesn't hack it. I'm now working in a small boat yard down the street from where we live in Wickford, R.I. It's a very basic way to make a living, but, perhaps because of that, thoroughly satisfying. Most of the workers there are college grads — as a matter of fact, kindred spirits. I'm also finding, or rather making time, to work on our own boat, a 30-foot sloop we are preparing for a four- or five-week cruise up the Maine coast this summer — preparatory to the start of law school in the fall. I dread getting back to the books after three years off, but still. Haven't seen anybody from Williams in ages. Maybe things'll pick up next year."

Bob Heiss will graduate from Harvard and take his D.C. bar exam in June. He is now a "part-time rent control hearing examiner for the City of Cambridge." After graduation he'll be with Brownstein, Zeidman, Drew & Schorer and in September he'll marry Arleen McGrath (Mt. Holyoke '70). Bob saw Art Cambouris (third year, Columbia) in N.Y.C. in January and Hal Marchik, who is now out of the Army and working for IBM in Cambridge.

Denny Kelly (Columbia, I gather) is "trying to recover from the shock that a 'mini-cruiser' (of Judy and Bill Drummond) is soon to terrorize the nation." . . . Denny ran into Duffy at Williams Winter Carnival . . . it was great to recall some old times, especially the 'True Follies' (Snydman will know what I mean). Also saw Westy Saltonstall, who got me back into the swing of things by inadvertently dropping some beer."

Larry Levien, still "grubbing" through Harvard Law, says classmate Dick Hiersteiner is "selling out to a rich Boston law firm."

Dave Marcello will graduate from Tulane this spring. He's looking for a "public interest law firm" and "may work in statewide campaigns — for governor or attorney general."

Ned Perry, contemplating law school this fall, just finished a cross-country trip and "building a trout hatchery in South Tamworth, N.H." Ned has seen Clint Wilkins, Jim Roe and Carl Weis — all "playing hockey"; John Odden at Andover; Rick Moore in St. Paul; Bill Whitover at his wedding; and "most important, during the day of the alumni telethon," Ned writes, "I was driving across the country, happened to be at Ed Nichols' house when Tad Piper called and I answered the phone!"

Frank Reed, at Columbia, reports he is "caught in the delicate balance between bar exams and spring fever. Providence may reward us with a Laotian invasion about May 1, in which case I plan to engage in really significant activities, such as frisbee tossing in Central Park. To join me I'm counting on Dick Dickerson (back from Guam in April), Al Swan, Bob Lord, et al. The specter of Poughkeepsie, Charlie Carter, has reportedly appeared in N.Y.C. as director of admissions at the Chapin School. Apparently he also took out Edie Davenport. Any truth to these rumors?"

E. J. Strassburger, graduating from Pitt in May, plans to marry Mona Kann of Pittsburgh and start clerking this fall for Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice Pomeroy.

In med schools:

Dick Browne, in his third year at Northwestern, reports seeing John Davis in Chicago.

John Herpel, third year, Duke, says, "Glenn Everhart has lost 90 pounds!!! Looks like Charlton Heston! . . . My brother, four years younger than I, was married at Christmas, but I remain stubbornly, heroically and resolutely a bachelor."

Gordie Juan "will study medicine and pediatrics in Tel Aviv this summer and do a quick tour of Europe before returning for year four at Cincinnati. Gordie says Steve Phillips "will work for the Bronx D.A. after graduating from Columbia law this spring."

Al Miller, third year, UVM, with Mark Donovan and Dick McGinn, is "occasionally skiing and snowshoeing through the white gold dumped on the Northeast."

Bob Wall, in med school in Charleston, says only, "the flowers are blooming and life is beautiful."

Mike Mustille, third year, Cornell, saw Perry Griffin '69 in N.Y.C. The Mustille's are expecting child No. 2. Their first plays with the junior edition of classmate Mike Layne, who "lives upstairs."

Bill Untereker, at Columbia, says he's "cutting umbilical cords and studying the anatomy of the perineum — at the labor room . . . Bob Stanton (known here as The Goose) is encountered in cutthroat I.M. basketball games."

Ed Weeks (according to Denny Kelly) has left Columbia for a while "to travel and work out West and in Mexico."

Mike Yogman, at Yale, will marry Judy Shapiro (Skidmore '68) June 20.

From Mark Pearlman at Duke: "Love, Herpel, McMahon and I have been hard at work here for three years: Jim is searching for the easy life — radiology or pathology, I think. John is headed for I'm not sure where and Ted and I are aiming for pediatrics. We also have Keith Edwards and Dave Mason, both '69, slaving away in the wards in their second year.

"My wife, Andy (Smith '69), works as a librarian on campus — thus the bread . . . We've been camping last fall and hope to continue this spring. Summer vacation should take us north, maybe even to Billsville (we were there last August and saw no one, other than Jerry and Bud, the barbers)."

"Heard from Jane and Dave Williams — they're in Leominster, Mass. Dave is teaching history; Jane is doing speech therapy, I think."

From grad schools:

John Angle is now a research assistant and Mark Creekmore is a residential college "fellow coordinator" and teaching assistant at Michigan, where both are in sociology.

Charlie Gordon, finishing his second year at Minnesota Architecture School, "hopes to initiate an architectural history program at St. Paul Academy."

Dan Jacoff, in physics at Columbia, met somebody (another unsigned card) at a N.Y.C. meeting of the American Physical Society.

Chris Owen is "working towards a Ph.D. in material American culture program of George Washington University and the Smithsonian Institution — working on cultural and architectural history." Chris will be in Oregon this summer "with an historic American buildings survey studying vernacular architecture of a 19th-century goldrush town. Anyway," he says, "I mostly read and read and read."

Tony Suh is "organizing a coalition of blacks, whites and Chicanos for community control of a school in Flint, Mich." Tony will marry Suzette Leith (Stanford '68) of Kansas City, Kan., in June. Suzette is getting a Chinese studies M.A.; Tony, a masters in social work — both at Michigan. The couple will travel in Japan, Korea and Taipei this summer.

Princeton (according to its news release) has awarded an economics M.A. to Denny Sullivan and a chemistry M.A. to old roommate Mark Decamp.

Still in the service:

Tom Beach, in the Army medical corps in Denver, writes that wife Pam gave birth in December to Jennifer Shaw. "Both Pam and I are optimistically applying to Cornell, MIT, UNC for degrees in planning. Seeing Meg and Ed Nichols frequently and Ed says he wants to learn to play bridge."

Kevin Dougherty should be out of both Thailand and the Army by now.

And John Miller has finished 16 months in Guantanamo and is now in Fleet Intelligence Center, Norfolk, Va.

Jeff Petty (correcting, I'm afraid, my clerical blunders) testifies: "I am not, nor have I ever been, in the Army. I'm in the Navy and now stationed at Nas Pax River, Md." Jeff has "transferred from oceanographic development squadron eight to fleet air reconnaissance squadron four."

Roger Walke '67 was quoted in the last number (winter '67 notes) as saying, after he refused draft induction: "Can you imagine a situation in which it would be natural to accept an invitation to kill people? I would be interested in people's comments on this." "Infantry Airborne Ranger Special Forces Captain" Mike Pete does comment: "There is too much logic in his position." Mike, now at Ft. Devens and due for separation this summer, boasts — after four years in the Army — "no time in S.E. Asia!" Mike saw brother (and fellow infantryman) Bill in Korea in November.

Phil Recht is "trying to get out of the good old Nav. He's 'presently overhauling submarines in Philadelphia.'" Fellow sailor Earl Potter visited Phil in Connecticut while on leave in December and Scott Wylie "stopped in on his way to Korea in January." Phil says he has "turned into one of the original Zumwalt hippies."

Kent Van Allen has also "been in the Navy — can I help it?" Kent says he's "hoping for a cut and law school in the fall — but I've been hoping since graduation."

From Larry Pilcher in Vietnam:

"I can't claim to have seen any classmates lately as I don't believe there are any '68ers over here except me. What a delightful distinction, as you well know. As of today (13 March) I've been in Vietnam four months. Only someone who has experienced it can describe the feelings of an infantry second lieutenant arriving at Bien Hoa Air Base, Republic of Vietnam. My feelings were a combination of fear, depression and bitterness. The absolute absurdity and insanity of our 'foreign policy' became abundantly clear to me at that time in a personal way.

"The very disturbing feature of our presence in Vietnam is the utter contempt for the Vietnamese shown by Americans. I believe this attitude is racist in nature. Very few Americans here really care about what happens to South Vietnam. The GIs were never given any instruction on the Vietnamese culture, which, considering the importance of political factors in this war, seems almost criminal.

"I'm in the process of applying for an early out to attend law school this September. Chances are favorable, but I first have to be accepted by either BU or Fordham.

"Recently I became engaged to Cathy von der Hude, Green Mountain '69, and now an art student in N.Y.C."

Paul Christopherson will receive a B.D. this June from Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge.

Bill Smith will also get his B.D. in June — from Harvard Divinity School. He writes: "We are waiting to see whether Barbara is accepted in the Boston College Perkins School for the Blind M.Ed. program, with specialty in deaf-blind education . . . My plans are uncertain. We see Peggy and Dave Redman when they visit us here or we visit them in New Haven. Ross Anthony came to visit us in January and will hopefully come again later this month or next. Saw Dave Eblen and Jonathan Mardrossian, as well as Ross, at Dave Redman's wedding in Fishkill, N.Y., in December. Seeing so few friends makes me realize how few new ones one makes in graduate school.

"At the risk of sounding schizoid (half radical, half Old Guard) I must say that one thing in our society which still seems to me to offer experiences which are potentially more humanizing than dehumanizing is the small liberal arts college like Williams. As we all evolve the new life styles that are so necessary, I would hope that part of our change would be an increase in benevolence, i.e., giving up cherished accoutrements of Williams men, the third Scotch of the evening, a club, any car costing over $3,500 and most American cars, and giving more to Williams, Common Cause, McGovern for President, etc. Being a poor student has shown me how much one can do without and still live a humane life. And I hope, when we make more money, not to consume more but to give away more. Sounds good, but I may succumb to temptation, too."

Responses to my question (" . . . tell me your party preference and who . . . you want the Democrats to run against Nixon") were sparse and scattered. A good (scientific) political scientist would ignore them; I am not so constrained. Very few mentioned party preference, but Democrats beat Republicans by about 2-1. Out of all the answers, Muskie got ten votes, McGovern eight, Hughes four, "anybody who'll win" four; Lindsay three; Kennedy, Humphrey, Ramsay Clark, Adlai Stevenson and Larry O'Brien one each (the last two from Republicans). Also suggested as candidates were former N.Y.C. Taxpayer's Party candidate Vitto Battista, Gracie Slick, Spiro Agnew ("divide and conquer"), Joe Valachi, Monte Rock III (for V.P.) and "anyone but Humphrey." Bill Untereker thought Harold Hughes "has the Gurgle endorsement." Larry Leven suggested my name. (Thanks Lar, but that's absurd: I'm a Republican.) Finally, another unsigned card offered no candidate but said, "I wish the Democrats would run a tank against Nixon-Agnew."

Local item: UVA law student Guy Hensley is engaged to art history graduate student Marion McCain (Vanderbilt '68) of Houston.

Dave Wheeler's card was returned as undeliverable. Can this be a sign of the beginning of the end?

If not, Ya'll keep'em cards'n letta's comin'!

Editor's Note:

The following members of the Class of 1968 are on the "lost list." If you know of their whereabouts, please inform the Society of Alumni: Peter B. Abraham, Michio Hamano.

'69

President, Johan L. Hinderlie; Secretary, Eric D. Kelly, 700 West 17th St., Pueblo, Colo. 81003; Asst. Lowell S. Smith

Secretary Kelly reports:

Lots of news this spring from classmates unheard from for months . . .

Great and newsy letter from Terry Palmer, who neglected only to tell us what he is doing in N.Y.C. Terry writes, "So that all may know, the venerable Scott Murphy is at Columbia Law and is happily married to (surprise!) Cathy, his female cohort of long-standing.

"Bob Lee, also back in N.Y.C. after a summer in Boulder where he ran a crash pad for wayward hippies, is briefly at Union Theological Seminary. He was married to the former Carolyn Jones in Fairborn, Ohio, in December. At the wedding were his brother George '67, Dennis Murphy and Don Tufts.

"Murph is putting in long hours in the newsroom of WCBS-TV. Tufts has succeeded in getting a transfer from his VISTA job in Beaufort, S.C., to another VISTA assignment in the tall-timber country of Oregon.

"Mike Goodbody went through with his threat and went skiing in the Alps. Saw Ross Wilson in Williamstown and he tried to sell me a pair of skis. He's apparently living near there and has not changed a bit.

"Finally Carl Manthei is playing Melvin Belli out at D.U. Law (Denver). He's on his fourth Dwarfmobile since I've known him, this one, a 1960 Mercedes which I helped him put 15,000 miles on traveling around Canada and the USA."

If anyone mentioned wants rebuttal time, please let us know what Terry is doing these days. . . .

Red Jeffrey is still at Fletcher School working toward a Ph.D. Says he will head for South America in the fall and avoid future eastern winters.

Tom Howell is now an ensign working, believe this, as assistant manager of the officers' club in Pensacola. Says he goes to work at 9 o'clock in civilian clothes. Nash has seen Lee Griffith, Dave Mason, John Halbrooks, George Scarola "and many others" (unmentionable, Tom?) in his wanderings.

Bill Hoffman reports that he is leaving Fletcher School to try law for a while at Harvard, Berkeley or Michigan. Bill found one of our "missing," says that Smitty Hopkins is completing a special program in pre-med at Columbia and plans to go into Med School there.

Bob Lunn has left South Hadley to work on a masters in hospital administration at Duke. Following completion of that degree he will work toward a doctorate and then hopefully go into mental health planning. Bob sees Dave Mason and Ted McMahon

Hammell '67 Wins Army Commendation

Sp. 5 Robert P. Hammell '67 has received the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service while assigned as a dartsman with an engineers' brigade near Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam.

He attended Yale before entering the Army in August of 1969.

A controversial letter from Dennis Sullivan: "There's not much happening at Wright Patterson Air Force Base, and that's a fact. Contacts with my Williams career have been three in number: 1) a letter from Mike Dowhan at Ft. Benning containing the vital news that all paratroopers are whacko, 2) a response (never mind what kind of a response) from Prof. Kershaw to my letter pointing out that since his well-known dictum, 'There's no such thing as a free lunch,' has apparently become an honored theory among establishment decision-makers, his claim to the next Nobel for Economic Science seems assured, 3) while viewing some pristine New Englandiana in Nashua, N. H., I thought with disgust about the newly acquired coeds flouncing around my once pristine campus turf — and, to make it worse, all pictorial evidence suggests that the Williams co-ed is, first and foremost, powerful ugly. I thus: a) throw down the gauntlet to the Alumni Review to prove me wrong, and b) strongly recommend an honorary doctor of letters for Norman Mailer."

From John Olmsted: "Golf season started in a big way, as I went to the Masters — not to play, as you might suspect. I'm still getting $72 per week from the government for doing nothing, which is an interesting concept to me. Let's play down the hero role in Vietnam — someone might decide I'm a pig and bomb my home. I've recently taken some interviews with success-oriented firms, and have been thoroughly bored, so I'm planning a move to Boston for educational purposes. Tom Cary comes out from the city now and then to hit golf balls and throw a few down. Bound to catch you at the Taconic soon."

Rick Williams will be working with the advertising firm of Ketchum, MacLeod, and Grove. He will begin work in Pittsburg, but hopefully will be transferred to San Francisco within a year.

Tom Waltz will be receiving his M.D. degree from SUNY at Buffalo Med School. He, wife Claire, one-year-old daughter Jennifer, and dogs Otis and Lucy will be moving to Phoenix, Ariz., where he will begin a surgical internship at the Maricopa County General Hospital. He can be reached through the hospital, and would welcome any long- or short-term visitors.

Another lost classmate reappears: Pete Rutherford graduated from the University of Colorado Law School in May, 1970, and will graduate from the Thunderbird Graduate School with a master's in international management this August. Rut also reports his marriage to Miss Mary Pam Craven on May 29.

Rob Perlstein will begin an internal medicine internship at Montefiore Hospital in New York City. Rob graduated from North Carolina Med this spring.

Mark Ellis finished up at Yale Archi-ecture this spring and will trip through Europe this summer. Job hunting will begin this fall, but prospects seem dim for the right job. Mark (another Review truant) reports his marriage to Peggy Ann Geiger — Dec. 20, 1969. Mark indicates that Rob Hammell will soon return from Vietnam to finish up his studies at Yale.

Bill Clendaniel is still with the Navy, but presently stationed in San Diego, one of his favorite places. Shore duty won't last long, however, as Bill is training to become navigator for the USS Goldsborough, soon to deploy to the Western Pacific. Bill hopes to enter law school in 1972.

Tom Haack has completed his first year at Stanford Business School and will work in Australia this summer. He invites anyone in Sydney to contact him c/o The Dillingham Co., Sydney CME, Sydney, Australia.

A long note from David McCarron: "After Thanksgiving, Patsy and I took two months off for vacation... saw Howie Hopwood in Jacksonville, Fla., as we got the inside dope on Navy life. Howard hopes to be out by the fall and start law school. Also saw Bill Biersach in Wisconsin. Bill has his kid lifting wallets off of guests for a sideline — just ask Warner Fletcher. (He didn't get ours.) John Bloom (who is going to the University of Wisconsin for his internship) and Craig Currie stopped by in February. Craig is hoping to do legal service work this summer. As for us, we'll be going to Case Western Reserve (University Hospital of Cleveland) for my internship and residency, starting in June."

Bill Scott married Karen Thorne on Aug. 8, 1970, in Eugene, Ore. He will be doing postdoctorate work in neuropharmacology this fall at Rockefeller University.

Paul Sloan has emerged after a long silence. After graduation he taught for a year in Nashville, a year at Lansing College in Sussex, England. In 1969 he entered Vanderbilt Law School and is currently notes editor of the Law Review and articles editor of the Vanderbilt Journal of Transnational Law. While in England he "married the love of me life and have been partaking of nuptial delights ever since. Fond respects to all Gurgle members and, of course, to Pat and Jody."

Tom Ewing is graduating from the University of Southern California Med School in June.

From Bob Conway: "Living in Santa Fe with my wife, Anne — working at the local art museum — expecting a baby in late October — very happy with the beautiful vibrations of the Southwest."

Spencer Hays should be back from Vietnam by now, "after twelve long months!" (Exclamation point added by his mother.)

Al Lotman will graduate from Tulane

Malnati '67 Gets DVM From Cornell

George A. Malnati '67 received the Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree in June at Cornell University. He plans to join his father and Dr. Robert Henderson in practice in North Adams. He and his wife recently purchased a home in Williamstown.

Stableford '67 Heads ABC House

Jonathan A. Stableford '67 has been named resident director of the ABC house in Winchester, Mass., for the 1971-72 school year.

A teacher of English at the Senior High School in Winchester, where he has been on the staff since 1968, he previously taught high school English in West Hartford, Conn. In 1968 he earned a master's degree in English at Wesleyan University degree in English at Wesleyan University.

Med School this June and will then intern at the Albert Einstein Hospital in the Bronx.

Another classmate soon to leave Vietnam behind is John Kelleher, who will return to Virginia Law this fall. John is currently stationed at Dong Ha Combat Base, south of the DMZ.

Jay Prendergast (I think — card wasn't signed) married Bette M. Kaufman on May 2 and will intern at Harlem Hospital next year. His internship is a "rotating nine," which means a little bit of everything.

From Harry Tether: "I am about to terminate two years of disguised unemployment with Uncle Sam. After voluntarily withdrawing from OCS last summer, I was given a year drop and my choice of assignment in Munich. I promptly married Suzanne Jebb (Skidmore '69). We've spent a great winter and spring, traveling around Bavaria and Austria, including a week's skiing with Bryan Hickman at Lech. After an European ETS on June 29 we'll do a couple of months' traveling before returning to look for a job in the northeastern megalopolis."

The policy of the Alumni Office is to keep these notes from stretching on interminably, thus saving the expense of mailing postcards four times a year. So here I'll stop for the time being and catch the cards I didn't get to next time. Please don't forget to write me if you have any ideas at all about what the reunion should be.

Editor's Note:

Doubleday & Company, Inc. announced in May the appointment of Harv Matthews to assistant chief copywriter. Mr. Matthews has been with Doubleday since 1968.

'68

President, Thomas C. Demakis; Secretary, Robert H. Gillmore, 2 Perrotta Ave., Claremont, N. H. 03743; Agent, Thomas H. Pierce

Secretary Gillmore reports:

A year of law school graduations:

Paul Allison has left Michigan Law for Choate, Hall and Stewart, State Street, Boston, and expects Army active duty this fall.

Bob Gault, who was also at Michigan, will take the Washington State Bar Exam in July, travel during August, and in September will begin a two-year clerkship with the Hon. William J. Lindberg, U. S. District Court for the Western District of Washington.

Bob Heiss finished Harvard June 17, took the bar exam in his native D.C. and is now with Brownstein, Zeidman, Drew and Schomer. Bob will marry Arleen McGrath (Holyoke '70) in N.Y.C. in September.

Bob Klatell has left N.Y.U. Law for Nickerson, Kramer, Lowsenstein, Hessen

and Kamin (N.Y.C.) and is "moving into a new and larger apartment." Wife Penny is getting her Ph.D. and will teach nursing this fall at Columbia P. & S.

Jeff Palmer and Steve Phillips have finished Columbia. Jeff will work for a Boston firm, Steve for the Bronx D.A.

Bruce Thall finished at Penn and will clerk for the Federal District Court in Wilmington this fall. Bruce planned this summer "to mediate for North and South Vietnam — that shouldn't take me past Aug. 4 or 5." He saw Stacey and John Oppenheimer in April. "John," writes Bruce, "is thinking of becoming a turkey farmer in Maryland but he hates the idea of giving up his apartment in New York. Maybe he can get some roof space and grow pigeons instead."

Ad Wilson has left Texas Law for a Dallas firm and is working for an LL.B. in taxes. Ad plans to attend Guy Horsley's August wedding to Marion McCain.

From those still in law schools . . . Bruce Berman at BU, writes that he will be married Aug. 29 to Jean Diane Komblad from Huntington, L. I. "She trades art in Newton and we'll be living in Boston at least for the next year, during which time I'll be finishing law school at Boston University.

"I was fortunate to be selected this spring to represent the law school as one of three on the National Moot Court team. It will involve preparation of a brief during August and September, with oral arguments at the regional competition in the fall.

"In June and July I will be practicing criminal law in one of the Massachusetts district courts in the greater Boston area. Twenty-three of us will be able to try our own cases — misdemeanors, primarily — both as defenders and prosecutors. The program is an unusual one, available in only a few states, and will continue for me through my third year of school.

" . . . I recently saw my former roommate Bill MacMillen '69 and Dick Means. Bill is still working for Bankers Trust in New York and Dick, who just became the father of a daughter, is at Harvard Business School and living in Cambridge."

Mike Hall finished two years at Michigan and this summer will clerk in Ann Arbor and visit ex-roommate Bob Bendick, who's city-planning in Woonsocket, R. I.

Denny Kelly, with one year left at Columbia, is working in N.Y.C. this summer, has seen "Tall-Slender" O'Grady, Clark McFadden, Jay Healy and Ron Yee and asks me to print: "Weeks, where are you?" and "McGill — drop in when you come by N. Y. this summer."

Ned Perry, still hoping for Virginia Law School in the fall, remains in South Tamworth, N. H. ("Nothing can be quite as good as our spring here in N. H."), starting a private trout hatchery, lobbying against new highways and going fishing and sailing on weekends. He saw Bill Brewer '65 at a Ripon meeting in Boston in March.

Tom Wagstaff has one more year at Kansas Law School, is still in the National Guard ("less than blissful"), and is now clerking for a Kansas City law firm. This fall he will "follow the Chiefs back to the Super Bowl." Tom says Herb Shultz '67 and wife Cynthia visited over Memorial Day; he plans to visit Charlie Deuser and wife Jill this summer and is still looking for How Bout' Cha.

Med school is a longer trip: Bob Arbeit has finished year three at Yale. He plans to spend July in Africa

Rice '68 Holds Lacrosse Post

Peter G. Rice '68 has been serving as assistant varsity lacrosse coach at the University of Virginia where he is studying for a master's degree in business administration.

A lacrosse player at Williams, Rice has been playing midfield for the Richmond, Va. team and has become one of the leading scorers in the country. The U. Va. team finished its 1971 season ranked first in the country.

and Europe and August in immunology research at Yale.

John Boyd, at Harvard, saw Marty Brutus in N.Y.C. Marty is the father of one-year-old twins, Timothy and Jeremy.

Skip Edmunds, at U. Va., planned a research trip to Peru this summer with his wife.

Fred Fox "alias '68" is taking one year off from Harvard Med to study public policy at the Kennedy School of Government.

Howard Kirshner, about to become a fourth year student at Harvard, will spend the summer in London at the Institute of Neurology, Queens Square, and in traveling on the continent. Howie saw old buddy John Fulkerson on Cape Cod.

Mike Lavyne, at Cornell in N.Y.C., writes after three years: "Seems like we've been here forever; Williamstown is just a good memory. I've almost forgotten the cold walks to 8 o'clock art history class."

Ted McMahon just finished a year of research at Duke on the pharmacology of amphetamines. He will be in Durham through July, at San Francisco General Hospital in September and October and "then back to Duke." He expects the M.D. in May '72.

"Caroline and Jim Boynton stopped in for a couple of days in May enroute to Dallas — a pleasant visit!"

Albert Miller, about to begin year four at Vermont, plans a seven-week vacation this summer since he had no vacation last year. Al was eating lunch in the hospital in Burlington one day with (classmate) Dick McGinn, when Mike Mustille and Mark Pearlman walked into the cafeteria. They were having interviews up there — but neither one knew the other was going to be there!

Mike is still at Cornell. Mark is at Duke, where he planned clinical rotation in pediatric surgery before vacation for a few weeks at the end of August.

Al Sklaver, ending year three at George Washington, writes: "My wife and I had a beautiful little girl, Alissa, Jan. 28. I will be finishing up my rotations this summer, then taking electives at Walter Reed Hospital and several other hospitals in the Washington area."

Jake Van Dyken writes: "After being among the five missing members of the Class of '68, I thought I'd better reply . . .

"I am in my third year at the College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery and will be at Mercy Hospital, Des Moines, Iowa, for the next year during a rotating clinical clerkship.

"We have an addition to our family, a seven-month-old daughter, Lara Marie.

"I have been corresponding with David

Wrightington '66 who is now a VISTA volunteer in Huntsville, Ala."

David, meanwhile, wrote that Jake married wife Gail in August, 1968, and that Jan Rais is in South America soliciting manuscripts from university professors for his publishing firm.

"Dan Sullivan," David writes, "was married in August, 1968, and since then taught at Stowe (Vermont) School, opened a head shop above Rudy Goff's store, bar-tended at the Williams Inn, worked in a Pownal leather factory, bar-tended at Elwal Pines, taught at the Butin School in Adams, annulled his marriage, reopened his head shop beneath the Dug Out, taught at Berner High in Massapeola, L. I., and is now looking to teach in Hollywood."

Finally, Austin Wand, still at Cincinnati Med, will be studying radiology at Hammersmith Hospital in London this summer and touring Europe in the fall.

In the service (or finally out of it):

Dick Dickerson got a 12-month early Navy release "after spending the last 18 months in Guam aboard a dangerously rusted submarine tender." Dick spent a week with Caroline and Clark Hulse '69, who is in English at Claremont Graduate School. Dick planned to "take a roadtrip to Williams in May to see some Williams girls and hack my way through the woods on the Taconic Golf Course and to visit Joe Adelson, teaching in Northampton. Frank Reed (who finished at Columbia Law) got a great job with a multi-name firm in New York and has an even better apartment in the Village, which I will help occupy this summer. Also see a lot of Marion and Al Swan (who also finished at Columbia), Rob Lord and Bob Trent in New York."

Although Rod Dimock is still supply officer of the USS Compton in Boston, he will be "hopefully out of the Navy this summer, back to N.Y.C. for awhile and then to school in economics." Rod reports that Bill Appar was to be married in June.

From Mark Jacox, the anguished cry of a Spec 4:

"Not much to report, the Army being just as much a waste of time as ever — no matter what direction you take. I opted for four years with ASA to get language schools but my expectations have been rather handily frustrated by all the waste that the E.M. has to wade through. The school reputation must have been gained years ago, for now it is nothing to brag about. Since no amount of academic success makes any difference in determining future assignments and since I had had a fair amount of Russian before, I decided that working hard just to satisfy myself didn't make it. So I've coasted through the Russian course (starting in the middle) without more than a glance at work and came in second in the pro-test. Big deal. Meanwhile I've enjoyed Monterey, Carmel and San Francisco as much as possible.

"Next step in my itinerary is San Angelo, Tex. — the middle of nowhere! — for further training. Then off to the wilds of Turkey for a one-year hardship tour, after which I hope to transfer to Germany or back to Monterey as an assistant instructor in Russian. It depends on how the winds are blowing next year, or rather in August, 1972. Whew! That seems like a long way off, except when compared with May '72 (ETS) (i.e., discharge date). Classmates encountered? I haven't met a human being in ages. The only important data I can think of is that I have 1138 days left. Aah!"

Bill Pete, who was stationed at Eighth

and Kamin (N.Y.C.) and is "moving into a new and larger apartment." Wife Penny is getting her Ph.D. and will teach nursing this fall at Columbia P. & S.

Jeff Palmer and Steve Phillips have finished Columbia. Jeff will work for a Boston firm, Steve for the Bronx D.A.

Bruce Thall finished at Penn and will clerk for the Federal District Court in Wilmington this fall. Bruce planned this summer "to mediate for North and South Vietnam — that shouldn't take me past Aug. 4 or 5." He saw Stacey and John Oppenheimer in April. "John," writes Bruce, "is thinking of becoming a turkey farmer in Maryland but he hates the idea of giving up his apartment in New York. Maybe he can get some roof space and grow pigeons instead."

Ad Wilson has left Texas Law for a Dallas firm and is working for an LL.B. in taxes. Ad plans to attend Guy Horsley's August wedding to Marion McCain.

From those still in law schools . . . Bruce Berman at BU, writes that he will be married Aug. 29 to Jean Diane Komblad from Huntington, L. I. "She trades art in Newton and we'll be living in Boston at least for the next year, during which time I'll be finishing law school at Boston University.

"I was fortunate to be selected this spring to represent the law school as one of three on the National Moot Court team. It will involve preparation of a brief during August and September, with oral arguments at the regional competition in the fall.

"In June and July I will be practicing criminal law in one of the Massachusetts district courts in the greater Boston area. Twenty-three of us will be able to try our own cases — misdemeanors, primarily — both as defenders and prosecutors. The program is an unusual one, available in only a few states, and will continue for me through my third year of school.

" . . . I recently saw my former roommate Bill MacMillen '69 and Dick Means. Bill is still working for Bankers Trust in New York and Dick, who just became the father of a daughter, is at Harvard Business School and living in Cambridge."

Mike Hall finished two years at Michigan and this summer will clerk in Ann Arbor and visit ex-roommate Bob Bendick, who's city-planning in Woonsocket, R. I.

Denny Kelly, with one year left at Columbia, is working in N.Y.C. this summer, has seen "Tall-Slender" O'Grady, Clark McFadden, Jay Healy and Ron Yee and asks me to print: "Weeks, where are you?" and "McGill — drop in when you come by N. Y. this summer."

Ned Perry, still hoping for Virginia Law School in the fall, remains in South Tamworth, N. H. ("Nothing can be quite as good as our spring here in N. H."), starting a private trout hatchery, lobbying against new highways and going fishing and sailing on weekends. He saw Bill Brewer '65 at a Ripon meeting in Boston in March.

Tom Wagstaff has one more year at Kansas Law School, is still in the National Guard ("less than blissful"), and is now clerking for a Kansas City law firm. This fall he will "follow the Chiefs back to the Super Bowl." Tom says Herb Shultz '67 and wife Cynthia visited over Memorial Day; he plans to visit Charlie Deuser and wife Jill this summer and is still looking for How Bout' Cha.

Med school is a longer trip: Bob Arbeit has finished year three at Yale. He plans to spend July in Africa

Rice '68 Holds Lacrosse Post

Peter G. Rice '68 has been serving as assistant varsity lacrosse coach at the University of Virginia where he is studying for a master's degree in business administration.

A lacrosse player at Williams, Rice has been playing midfield for the Richmond, Va., team and has become one of the leading scorers in the country. The U. Va. team finished its 1971 season ranked first in the country.

and Europe and August in immunology research at Yale.

John Boyd, at Harvard, saw Marty Brutus in N.Y.C. Marty is the father of one-year-old twins, Timothy and Jeremy.

Skip Edmunds, at U. Va., planned a research trip to Peru this summer with his wife.

Fred Fox "alias '68" is taking one year off from Harvard Med to study public policy at the Kennedy School of Government.

Howard Kirshner, about to become a fourth year student at Harvard, will spend the summer in London at the Institute of Neurology, Queens Square, and in traveling on the continent. Howie saw old buddy John Fulkerson on Cape Cod.

Mike Lavyne, at Cornell in N.Y.C., writes after three years: "Seems like we've been here forever; Williamstown is just a good memory. I've almost forgotten the cold walks to 8 o'clock art history class."

Ted McMahon just finished a year of research at Duke on the pharmacology of amphetamines. He will be in Durham through July, at San Francisco General Hospital in September and October and "then back to Duke." He expects the M.D. in May '72.

"Caroline and Jim Boynton stopped in for a couple of days in May enroute to Dallas — a pleasant visit!"

Albert Miller, about to begin year four at Vermont, plans a seven-week vacation this summer since he had no vacation last year. Al was eating lunch in the hospital in Burlington one day with (classmate) Dick McGinn, when Mike Mustille and Mark Pearlman walked into the cafeteria. They were having interviews up there — but neither one knew the other was going to be there!

Mike is still at Cornell. Mark is at Duke, where he planned clinical rotation in pediatric surgery before vacation for a few weeks at the end of August.

Al Sklaver, ending year three at George Washington, writes: "My wife and I had a beautiful little girl, Alissa, Jan. 28. I will be finishing up my rotations this summer, then taking electives at Walter Reed Hospital and several other hospitals in the Washington area."

Jake Van Dyken writes: "After being among the five missing members of the Class of '68, I thought I'd better reply . . ."

"I am in my third year at the College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery and will be at Mercy Hospital, Des Moines, Iowa, for the next year during a rotating clinical clerkship.

"We have an addition to our family, a seven-month-old daughter, Lara Marie.

"I have been corresponding with David

Wrightington '66 who is now a VISTA volunteer in Huntsville, Ala."

David, meanwhile, wrote that Jake married wife Gail in August, 1968, and that Jan Rais is in South America soliciting manuscripts from university professors for his publishing firm.

"Dan Sullivan," David writes, "was married in August, 1968, and since then taught at Stowe (Vermont) School, opened a head shop above Rudy Goff's store, bar-tended at the Williams Inn, worked in a Pownal leather factory, bar-tended at Elwal Pines, taught at the Butin School in Adams, annulled his marriage, reopened his head shop beneath the Dug Out, taught at Berner High in Massapeola, L. I., and is now looking to teach in Hollywood."

Finally, Austin Wand, still at Cincinnati Med, will be studying radiology at Hammersmith Hospital in London this summer and touring Europe in the fall.

In the service (or finally out of it):

Dick Dickerson got a 12-month early Navy release "after spending the last 18 months in Guam aboard a dangerously rusted submarine tender." Dick spent a week with Caroline and Clark Hulse '69, who is in English at Claremont Graduate School. Dick planned to "take a roadtrip to Williams in May to see some Williams girls and hack my way through the woods on the Taconic Golf Course and to visit Joe Adelson, teaching in Northampton. Frank Reed (who finished at Columbia Law) got a great job with a multi-name firm in New York and has an even better apartment in the Village, which I will help occupy this summer. Also see a lot of Marion and Al Swan (who also finished at Columbia), Rob Lord and Bob Trent in New York."

Although Rod Dimock is still supply officer of the USS Compton in Boston, he will be "hopefully out of the Navy this summer, back to N.Y.C. for awhile and then to school in economics." Rod reports that Bill Appar was to be married in June.

From Mark Jacox, the anguished cry of a Spec 4:

"Not much to report, the Army being just as much a waste of time as ever — no matter what direction you take. I opted for four years with ASA to get language schools but my expectations have been rather handily frustrated by all the waste that the E.M. has to wade through. The school reputation must have been gained years ago, for now it is nothing to brag about. Since no amount of academic success makes any difference in determining future assignments and since I had had a fair amount of Russian before, I decided that working hard just to satisfy myself didn't make it. So I've coasted through the Russian course (starting in the middle) without more than a glance at work and came in second in the pro-test. Big deal. Meanwhile I've enjoyed Monterey, Carmel and San Francisco as much as possible.

"Next step in my itinerary is San Angelo, Tex. — the middle of nowhere! — for further training. Then off to the wilds of Turkey for a one-year hardship tour, after which I hope to transfer to Germany or back to Monterey as an assistant instructor in Russian. It depends on how the winds are blowing next year, or rather in August, 1972. Whew! That seems like a long way off, except when compared with May '72 (ETS) (i.e., discharge date). Classmates encountered? I haven't met a human being in ages. The only important data I can think of is that I have 1138 days left. Aah!"

Bill Pete, who was stationed at Eighth

Summer 1971

Army headquarters in Seoul, becomes a civilian July 18 and noted that he was the same rank as Calley!

Still in Korea is Scott Wylie, who says that he should be out of the Army in February and that Bill Pete "shammied from one easy job to another . . ."

In the business world:

Jeff Brinn '70 (and ex-'68), in response to my "list of haven't heard of's and from's in the Winter issue" writes: "No longer able to contain myself, I herewith relate the following:

"I finally finished up at Williams last spring ('70) and am now working at Chemical Bank's Dommerich (factoring) Division, extending credit in the hundreds of thousands of dollars each week. As far as jobs go, it certainly is one.

"I saw Kevin Sheehan '66 a number of times during the summer as we passed each other on Park Avenue (he looking for an air-conditioned bus and I in search of a similarly equipped subway). I also saw John Reznick one afternoon in front of his place of business, Bankers Trust Co.

"My wife (the former Myra Allenstein) and I are now living on West 87th St. in Manhattan and are enjoying the finer things of life in the Big Apple: e.g., pollution, traffic, noise, high prices, high taxes, and high rent. However, they have this nice little park only one-and-a-half blocks away and that makes everything else bearable. No little ones on the way just now, but pretty soon we hope. I'm orienting myself toward law or business school by next September, but not sure where or which just yet."

John Davis is now living in Atlanta and is a salesman with GAF Corp., with sales territory covering Georgia and Florida.

Steve Fisher is still a financial analyst at Xerox Corp. in Rochester, N. Y., working in the pricing department and "beginning to consider striking out on my own." Steve will attend Dave Eblen's Aug. 21 wedding in Chicago.

Jim Madison is working for an electronics company in Melvindale, Mich.

Preston Moore is a creative writer for Griswold-Eshleman Advertising, Inc., Cleveland.

Garrett Thornburg is working in Jamaica for Continental Homes, Inc., on a 301-house project in Montego Bay. Thorny says Bill Garth '67 spent his spring vacation from Harvard Law in Jamaica.

Ned Williams just became a broker with Hornblower and Weeks, in New York, and adds: "Talked with C. Deuser on phone but couldn't get him to break from exams for spring weekend at Williams. Ran into Tom Ervin, whose younger brother Bill '71 tapped my younger brother Tom '72 for Gurgle. Bill MacMillan was, well, obviously he was. Wynny Williams seems to be happy to see throw-back days like that one, and is glad to be back as a junior. Called O'Grady for house party but Deuser says he's getting pretty heavy with the red on white on white jazz."

In grad schools:

A. K. Bakesigaki, still in physics at SUNYA (State University of New York at Albany), went to the University of Colorado (Boulder) summer school.

Glenn Everhart writes from Wilmington: "Hello from the Confederacy . . ." Still in physics at Penn, Glenn reported himself hard at work on some experiment and giving a paper at the APS meeting in D.C. April 26-27. Over spring vacation Glenn saw John Herpel who "was looking for a new (or not-too-old-used) Imperial or some such thing to go with what I take is his image of what a rich M.D. should have. Next year is his last in med school (Duke) and he's really juiced for that kind of work. You should hear him. He and Charlie Buschman are planning, I hear, to go hiking in the Canadian Rockies all during the summer."

Charlie Gordon is finishing his third year at U. Minn. School of Architecture, working for a small firm in Minneapolis and remodeling an elementary school.

Bart Phelps won a Yale Architecture School petition to design an urban development project in Peru.

Ed Rea will have his M.P.A. (master of public administration) from Syracuse's Maxwell School in January. He says Bob Snyder, also at Syracuse, is working for a "D.D.S." (doctor of social service?).

Jim Roc has finished year one at Harvard B. School and is in Boston this summer.

Peter Rice finished his first year at U. Va. Business and is teaching summer school. Peter saw Doug Doan (at dental school in Buffalo) in Williamstown and Bill Calfee, still in the Navy, in Norfolk.

David Sloane finished teaching Russian at Williams this year and will be studying Russian lit at Harvard in the fall. He writes that Jim Lowenthal and his wife Heidi were up to visit in Williamstown. "They have a beautiful baby (three months) — Yuri."

Bill Smith has his B.D. from Harvard Divinity, where he is assistant dean of students. Wife Barbara will study for her M.Ed. at Boston College this fall.

Kent Van Allen will be out of the Navy Sept. 10 — in time for Harvard B. School.

Mike Wasserman is finishing his MIT mathematics Ph.D. This summer he is working for the Cambridge Project, a government-sponsored group designing a computational environment for behavioral scientists. Wass serves "in a liaison capacity, between computer types and social scientists." He'll teach a BU graduate course and start Harvard Law this fall.

Bob Bendick notes wistfully that Bill Shapiro (who finished U. Va. Law) and Randy Dygert (who is teaching in Greenfield) are getting married, leaving T. Bell the only remaining member of the fantastic four.

Scot McCulloch is still a D.C. Capitol policeman — "only not for long. The tedium is wearing my liberal-arts-trained mind down." Scot plans a trip to Colorado in August.

John Odden is cycling and kyaking in New England this summer.

Bruce Simon, still in Jackson, Wyo., is a tennis pro this summer, plans to vacation this fall and to be a ski-touring guide next winter.

Tony Suh travels this summer in Taiwan, Korea, and Japan with his fiancée, Suzette Leith, whom he will marry upon their return. Both will finish their master's degrees at Michigan this fall.

Curt Tyler is "still in New Canaan — loafing — no, actually, I make myself useful by teaching swimming and skin-diving at the YMCA here . . . Am very interested in underwater photography and hope to become a national scuba instructor this fall. Have seen Jon Weller a number of times for weekend visits. Saw Gary Bensen '70 in New Canaan after he returned from Europe."

Late card from Mike Yogman, who married Judy Schapiro (Skidmore '70) in June and honeymooned in Nova Scotia. Mike, who will be back in Yale Med this fall, saw Al Gortz '67, who is working in a N.Y.C. law firm and Mark Sullivan, who is working in Chicago. Mike talked with George Schelling, who is writing for the Star Press in Kennebunk, Me. and he reports that Jill and Bob Foster are teaching in Hartland, Me.

Your secretary is home for the summer, and he invites you who are up this way to stop in.

'69

President, Johan L. Hinderlie; Secretary, Eric D. Kelly, 700 West 17th St., Pueblo, Colo. 81003; Agent, Lowell S. Smith

Secretary Kelly reports:

Great response this time from the long-overlooked last half of the alphabet — the Alumni Office neatly divides us into "A-J's" and "everybody else," and it recently occurred to me that the dearth of mail from myself probably indicated that all us "everybody elses" had been overlooked.

David Whittlesey, who is working in a delinquency prevention program in Cambridge, writes that "much of Williams passes through here at one time or another." Other than Tom Howell, who seems to be regularly delinquent from his duties defending our nation's officers' clubs, we'll assume Dave means through Boston and not his place of employment.

Mel Dunn is in the area, beginning a three-and-a-half year master of architecture program at Harvard Design. Mel says John Rahill '68 is also in his class.

Charles E. Welch, III '69 (as he puts it), writes that he is working in sanit at Mass. Mental Health Center in Boston, "single, 1-0 and doing well. Peace . . ."

Sam Bruskin is, of course, still going to school double-time — working full-time on a law degree and on a Ph.D. in musicology, both at Harvard. Sam says he will spend the summer clerking for Goodwin, Procter and Hoar in Boston while studying for his generals in musicology.

Jim Dunn and his wife, Lynne, have recently moved to Boston for Jim to start law school. He writes that he saw Chuck Kramer '70, John Hayes, Yogi Santa Donata and Tom Goodbody at Goodbody's farm over Christmas vacation.

Sal Mollica is on the Brighton side of the river at Harvard Business, where, he writes, "I met and married Mary Beth Clark of Readfield Depot, Me." Sal writes that he will serve three months of active Army duty starting in August.

Glenn Shealey is "studying" for comps for his Ph.D. in history at Harvard. He hopes to be finished by October.

Up the river at MIT is Henry Walker. Henry is now math department rep to the Grad Student Council at MIT. He just finished his oral exams and spends his spare time with the choral society. Henry says Bob Cronin is still teaching at Pine Cobble but will leave Billsville in the fall to begin grad drama study at Smith. Steve Hicks is also teaching at Pine Cobble and plans to stay.

From Historic Concord, Mass., writes the school board pres, Sandy Smith. For a living, he is employed by the National Humanities Council. Sandy writes that he saw Candy and Dave Low, Herb Ogden and Tom Parker on a trip to Michigan. Tom is now engaged. Sandy also reports that Chris Miller, ex-'69, was recently wed at Cupertino, Calif., and that Gretchen and Dick Mosher '67 are doing well.

In scenic Northampton Dave Ebitz is do-

From Morgan Nields: "After grabbing a piece of paper with M.B.A. written on it, I took a job in France with Graco Inc. of Minneapolis. I haven't seen many classmates lately, but I'm frequently in Minneapolis and am bound to run into a few. The Frogs are beginning to get to me. Me and my 650 Bonneville are no match against seven million Parisians all trying to get there ahead of the other guy. They're all crazy."

Official Class Secretary Ken Willcox is still toiling for the Navy as a supply officer for the USS Shreveport, but is counting on a three-month early-out so he can continue his M.B.A. at the University of Minnesota this fall. Ken reports that Neil O'Donnell will be out of the Navy and back to Yale Law this fall.

Bill Taylor was married to Susan Wells in June and is headed for Yale where he will be taking his training in pediatrics. Bill reports that Gary Lamphere and wife Judy are expecting a baby and that Gary will be interning in Chicago. Bill says that Jon Reynolds (the IGHN bear) will remain at Rochester Med. this coming year in preparation for "becoming a surgeon — honest. His friends from Williams will be glad to know that he can still drink and wench with the best of them — no plans for marriage in his immediate future."

Damon Hart is out of the Navy and received his M.S. in management technology last May. Damon has been in contact with Bud Hurd who is doing work as a conscientious objector in Pittsfield, where he is working with legal aid.

From Bill Henderson: "Still in Chicago organizing neighborhood theatres, inner-city drama jamborees and festivals and encouraging young people trapped inside this ugly cage to express themselves through theatre to the rest of the urban community. Learning all of the time, but a new kind of knowledge — what other people are all about, revealing to me what I am all about — tending to make me question all of those 'credit hours' put in at Williams."

Rod Schnur reports progress towards a Ph.D. at Penn State. Rod and his wife, Wendy, spent last spring vacation skiing with Bill Crane and his wife, Barbara.

Marty Samuels will be doing his internship in internal medicine at Boston City Hospital, while his wife, Linda, is looking for a teaching or research position after completing her M.S. in genetics. Marty reports that Larry Ricketts left the Army in June and spent the summer in Europe.

Warner Fletcher and Bill Garth are both second-year law students at B.U. Warner and his wife, Mary, had their first child early in the summer.

From Jeff Bowen: "After a year as an Air Force language instructor in Vietnam, I have landed in a base hospital just north of Sacramento, Calif. There I shuffle paper in the training office and it looks like I'll be languishing for a couple of years until my hitch unhitches. Hilary and I really miss New England — after all we are at least three thousand miles from the ocean — and we hope to return just as soon as we can scramble out of the clutches of the military bureaucracy."

Len Spencer is currently chairman of the Northern Vermont Art Teacher's Association and will help organize the Art Teacher's Convention in Burlington this fall. He is also on the committee for the state-wide students art fair.

Chick Tucker "will be giving up the corporate bit this fall to enter law school at the University of Denver."

From Van Hawn: "My life is sadly without novelty, even to me. Law school was over in June, thank God, and I will be in New York seeking my fortune, probably until the end of time. Letters from John Kelleher and Gardie Gillespie indicate that they both will return to law school at Virginia after tours in the Army."

Ron Matthews, now a captain in the Air Force, will soon leave for Southern Asia as a maintenance officer.

Mark Richards received an unexpected but much prayed for early-out from the Navy in June. He and wife Liz cavorted around Europe for a month before returning home to Brattleboro, Vt., where Mark is plugging into his father's insurance business.

Lyn Comfort and wife Peggy live in New York, where Lyn is working in the real estate business. He and Peggy now have two children, Kimberly and Brian.

From John Fuller: "I'm serving a short (?) five years with the Navy, flying off of the USS Saratoga, and preparing for a good summer in the Mediterranean if the Arabs and Israelis can lay off one another. Niall Coughlin spent a day in Williamsburg with my wife and me. He is finishing up a tour with the Army at Ft. Meade, Md."

Peter Krause received a pediatric internship at the Yale (New Haven) Hospital. Hiram Lewis is out of the Army and studying painting at the University of Oregon.

Bob Holst reports marrying Martha Ratliff of Ann Arbor, Mich., and the beginning of work on his dissertation, probably on the work of an obscure 18th-century composer. Bob is still "unswervingly devoted to music."

David Rikert and wife Betsy spent several months this summer putting up an addition to Betsy's parents' house and then took a three-week jaunt into British Columbia, the Tetons and Colorado for some climbing.

Fred Ball completed his first year at Wharton Business School and worked for a bank in Arizona this summer.

Arnie Debeaufort will receive his M.B.A. from the University of Virginia this year and then assume duties as administrative officer for Lincoln University in Oxford, Pa. He participated in the April Viet Vets for Peace march, where he "chucked in my rusty war medals."

From Jon Vipond: "Life is pleasant enough here in the capital of the much troubled and practically bankrupt Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. My work always keeps me in the middle of (or at least on the edge of) the toughest problems — like the constitutionality of our new income tax law, who is responsible for our polluted waters, and what sorts of rights public employees have. By the way, I am working as clerk for the presiding judge of our Commonwealth Court."

Al Taylor should be back from Vietnam by now and into his second year at Columbia Law. His wife Pam reported a "delightful" R&R in Hawaii in April.

That's it for news. Please, if you have any ideas about the reunion, get them to me immediately.

Editor's Notes:

Ted McPherson recently was awarded the Joint Service Commendation Medal upon release from active duty with the United States Navy following two years of assignment with the Defense Intelligence Agency. He holds an advanced degree in Business Management from George Washington University and currently is a management consultant based in Washington, D.C., with the multinational firm of Booz, Allen & Hamilton, Inc.

De Beaufort '67 Is Wilson Fellow

Arnold W. de Beaufort '67, a Princeton University Woodrow Wilson administrative intern, has been assigned to work at Lincoln (Penn.) University as assistant to the business manager. He recently received his M.B.A. from the University of Virginia.

The following members of the Class of 1967 are on the "lost list." If you know of their whereabouts, please inform the Society of Alumni: Stuart A. Elliott, Edward G. Helm, II, and William F. Willett.

'68 President, Thomas C. Demakis; Secretary, Robert H. Gillmore, 2 Perrotts Ave., Claremont, N.H. 03743; Agent, Thomas H. Pierce

Secretary Gillmore reports:

A June 12 letter from Joe Adelson:

"I've just finished my second year in graduate school at U. of N.C. at Chapel Hill. Hopefully, I'll get a Ph.D. in clinical psychology sometime in the next two years or so. Fall plans include getting rolling on a dissertation. My topic will be T-groups (or encounter groups or self-analytic groups or sensitivity sessions or whatever else people are calling them these days).

"Summer plans involved consulting for Human Resource Consultants, a group of socially minded psychologists in Chapel Hill. I'm now working on a preschool evaluational project in Fayetteville, N.C.

"Saw Dick Dickerson and Frank Reed in Williamstown in late May. We visited the '67 House and had a few at the Inn."

Others in grad school:

Jim Anderson, who spent the summer in the operations office of an Army basic training battalion at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., is again a civilian and at Caltech.

Bill Appar, proud owner of a new Harvard economics Ph.D., married Kristen Reasoner in Boston, June 26. He said Harvard law student Henry Hecht is "now looking for a roommate."

A. K. Bakesigaki, who has "another year" on his physics Ph.D. at the State University of New York at Albany, studied at the Summer Institute in Theoretical Physics at the University of Colorado, Boulder.

Al Bartovics, in anthropology at Brown, passed his Ph.D. prelims last May — exactly one year after he got his M.A. — and is now doing thesis research. This summer Al excavated the Old Slater Mill Museum in Pawtucket, R.I., and worked on another site in Killingly, Conn.

Tom Beach left the Army Sept. 17 and planned "to work a year or so to regain self-image (and bank account) before returning to school." Tom and his wife, Pam, see Meg and Ed Nichols "Whenever Ed's not off on a surprise IMB trip — which seems to be about once every other week or so. Meg loves it, natch. Heard Jon Weller had both his BMW 2002 and the contents of his apartment stolen in the past two months. Still like New York, Welby?"

Marty Brutus, attending Columbia Architecture evening school, now lives with his wife, the former Jennie Walsh, and twin boys — now 18 months old — in Richmond Hill, N.Y.

Mark Decamp writes from Princeton: "Rumor has it that I should be getting my degree (a chemistry Ph.D.) in the fall of '72." Mark had his first paper published a while ago in the Journal of Organic Chemistry. "Reprints are available upon request."

Glenn Everhart writes from Penn: "I continued to prepare an analysis of a (something-or-other) breaching ratio experiment. Calculations are coming along, and I hope to turn out some preliminary numbers in a few weeks. My other activities are merely local excursions to beach resorts, though there is a splendid wooded area nearby where I sometimes go hiking. John Angle came by a few weeks ago, visiting these area and some of his old haunts at Columbia."

Scott Fields said he was "writing science fiction" this summer — some of which appeared on his return post card: "New York University doing a Ph.D. in English, research in the psycholinguistics of space in 17th-century literature. Summer

Fall 1971

BRUCE L. THALL '68 of Philadelphia won first prize in the 1971 Nathan Burkan Memorial Competition at the University of Pennsylvania Law School with a paper entitled "Popular Music, Plagiarism, and Copyright." He is clerking for Judge Caleb Layton, III, in the Federal District Court at Wilmington, Del.

in Iceland and Hyperborea. Fall, graduate teaching assistant at NYU." Scott saw John DeMarco "on Walpurgisnacht, at the Szechuan Taste Restaurant in Chinatown — crazed grin having devoured the Home Style Astral Bean Cake." Bill Gustafson "got out of the Navy in April," traveled "in Mexico and the Midwest" and "worked in New Orleans" this summer. Bill begins a two-year city-planning master's program at Rutgers this fall. He saw John Kinabrew, wife Carol and son John in New Orleans. "Carol," he writes, "is a great cook."

Chris Owens, in George Washington's Am Civ Ph.D. program, worked this summer at the Interior Department's Historic American Buildings Survey, Jacksonville, Ore. Chris "camped out at Beaver Sulphur in Applegate Valley" (which I presume, must not be more than a mile or two from the very middle of nowhere).

Ed Rea, who resumed classes at Syracuse in August, spent the July 4th weekend with Gordy Allen and Howie Klee (both '67) and wives at Little Squam Lake, N.H.

Rick Rhodes and his wife vacationed this summer on Orcas Island, one of the San Juan Islands, north of Puget Sound, Wash. Still living in Placitas, N.M., Rick is in "two M.A. programs": one at the University of New Mexico, the other at St. John's College, Santa Fe. His wife is a guidance counselor at Santo Domingo Pueblo School. The Rhodes are "very close" to the Jerry Seidenwurms "and visit all the time," playing "basketball and baseball a great deal." Still with the Albuquerque public schools, Jerry and his wife have adopted a son, according to Rick.

Tony Suh and fiancée spent seven weeks this summer in Taiwan ("fascist, hot and dirty — but cheap"), Korea ("beautiful") and Japan ("expensive, crowded and polluted — the economic imperialist of the East"). Tony is finishing his master's in social work at MSU, where he's also a teaching assistant.

Dick Dickerson, at Penn architecture, "spent the summer taking courses and playing frisbee in N.Y.C.; spent much time distracting Frank Reed, as he tried to study for his bar exam; and spent many fine evenings with Marion and Al Swan and their amazing collie, Meg. Joe Adelson visited me for a week and drove with me to see Curt Tyler in New Canaan. Joe had no trouble persuading me to take time out . . . to visit him, Gwynn Radeker '67 and Tony Lamb ex-'69 in Chapel Hill this fall."

In business schools:

Kevin Dougherty, now at Columbia, "was discharged from the Army on May 13 after two years in Thailand." He worked and played golf at the Woods Hole Golf Club, Falmouth, this summer. Ke reports that Steve Sease (of George Washington Law) "spent a July weekend here — ask him if he remembers any of it. He quietly retreated to the Vermont hills to begin a two-month grind (??) for the bar exam."

Jim Lowenthal shattered three years of silence to tell us that he married Hildegard Teutsch in 1968, that son Yuri was born March 5, 1971, that he spent two years in the Peace Corps in Niger, West Africa, and one year with "R & D Corp." and that he is now at the Graduate Management School, Vanderbilt.

Dick Means, at Harvard, writes that his wife had a baby girl, Lela Sunday, April 12.

Joel Morse has left prep school teaching for UMass B school.

"After 11½ months in Korea" Bill Pete became a civilian on July 15, and this fall should be in B School either at Berkeley or San Diego State.

Tad Piper, who starts year two at Stanford this fall, writes that son Tad Wakefield Piper was born Aug. 4; Gretchen Piper is now 2½.

Lawyers (present and future):

Trav Auburn "will be out of Connecticut Law in January." This summer he "worked for Connecticut Bank and Trust, went to Europe and played Army for two weeks." Saw Walt Schlech '71 (ex-'68) in New Jersey. He will enter Cornell Med in the fall, after getting through Williams in seven years."

Bill Blanchard is "living happily in Manhattan with wife Joanne and two cats" and is with Hecht, Hadfield, Hays, Landsman & Head. After taking the bar exam this summer, the Blanchards holidayed in Greece and drove through Canada and New England. "Tom Chapman (ex-'68) helped us move into our apartment over Memorial Day weekend," writes Bill, who also recently has seen Art Cambouris, at the bar exam review course; Ned Williams, a stock broker at Hornblower, Weeks; and Charlie Potts, who has moved from Rye to Greenwich. Bill says he's "enjoying his work very much" and "having a good time exploring the City."

"After three years of teaching" Scott Burnham is at NYU Law.

Art Cambouris "took (and was taken) by the N.Y. Bar Exam" in July and then camped for five weeks in British Columbia with Bob Claridge, who is now in San Francisco. Art is now with the Legal Aid Society's Criminal Appeals Bureau. He spent a few days in Williamstown this spring, where he "saw the snack bar ladies, Mark Duffy '72 (ex-'68), Dick Dickerson, Frank Reed, Rob Herzog, Pancho and the now nuptualized Bob Cricenti. I also happened to spot Greasy Joan on a park bench, and then I . . . and then she . . . In the fall I plan on attending the social event of the year — the Heiss wedding in N.Y.C. The Ripoff Society will all be there."

Geoff Connor, second year Harvard, worked in a Newark law office this summer. He reports seeing John Stickney, who is "traveling and writing all over" — including, apparently, Cambridge.

Bill Drummond, in year three at Fordham, clerked in White Plains this summer and saw Jay Healy and Denny Kelly at Suzie and Bill Untereker's in N.Y.C.

Mike Hall, at Michigan, clerked in Ann Arbor and housepainted in Canada this summer.

Henry Hecht, at Harvard, is a "legislative intern" for Massachusetts House Speaker David L. Bartley, D-Holyoke. Henry "went to George Schelling's wedding and saw George, Rob Foster, Al Mosher, John Palmer, Ben Guy and Jim Boynton for the first time in three years."

Denny Kelly, at Columbia, "went to the Kentucky Derby this spring and celebrated the weekend with Charlie Bradbury who is going into his fourth year at Louisville Med. . . . The inimitable Bradbury pounce is still alive and oscillating well.

Larry Levien graduated from Harvard and is now with the National Labor Relations Board. Wife Jan begins George Washington Law this fall. Larry says John Oppenheimer is "finally learning some math at NYU B School."

Dave Marcello graduated from Tulane this spring and took the Louisiana Bar Exam in July. Dave "will probably work in political campaigns for governor or attorney general. Long-range plans are to start a public-interest law firm here in New Orleans by getting some foundation money. Presently drafting a proposal."

Rick Moore clerked in Minneapolis this summer and will be graduated from Minnesota Law in December. He's seen Suzie and Mark Donovan at Sally and Dodger Newhall's.

Larry Pilcher, recently civilianized, is at Fordham.

Peter Sartorius, "back from a year as an advisor to the Vietnamese Navy," is at the University of Virginia.

Just leaving the University of Virginia is Bill Shapiro, who will do general practice and trial work with an Alexandria lawyer. Bill married Ginny Leiser on July 10. He saw Jill and Bob Bendick and Bob Groban '70 at Randy Dygert's wedding.

Bruce Thall, clerking in Wilmington, "heard from Anne and Paul Neely. He has been doing muckraking for a Riverside, Calif., newspaper. He supplements his meager income by selling short stories to magazines. His latest one, "I Wanted Her Body So Badly," will appear in a soon-to-be-released issue of Modern Loves."

Mike Wasserman, who just finished an MIT mathematics Ph.D., is beginning all over again — at Harvard Law School.

Dobby West "got out of the Navy early" and is at Minnesota.

From med schools:

Henry Drinker, at the University of Virginia, worked at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital this summer, when he saw Peter Greenwood (ex-'68) at the Barker home in Westport. Henry's wife, the former Deborah Barker, and Peter's wife Tracy are sisters. Living with the Barkers last spring was Peter's old roommate, Ben Guy, who, Henry writes, was "waiting for his boat to be built."

Also at the University of Virginia, Skip Edmonds camped out West this summer with wife Sandy.

John Herpel, "still at Duke in pursuit of the elusive M.D.," spent five weeks "in the Canadian Rockies with Charlie Buschman." He often sees his Duke classmates Jim Love, Ted McMahon and Mark Pearlman.

Al Miller, at UVM, "enjoyed the sun and a little R & R" this summer "while looking around at hospitals in the East for internship possibilities." Al will be at a Hartford, Conn., hospital for a while this fall.

Mrs. Prudence Kimberley Ragsdale writes that "Teddy . . . will finish his senior year at the University of Colorado Medical School in December as he has been going to school during the summer and will graduate early. Then we go to Sun Valley to ski and hopefully, work (find a job). We will be there for about four months. His internship starts in June of 1972 and at this time he is not sure where he wants to go, probably the Pacific Northwest or Vancouver."

Tom Ray, at Oregon, published a paper on "fatty acids" in the July issue of The Journal of Investigative Dermatology. Tom backpacked this summer in Norway, Finland and Lapland.

Dave Snyderman, at Penn, married Diane Canter on June 26 and honeymooned in Europe for two months. Pancho was best man; Cambouris was an usher; Howie Steinberg was a guest.

Bob Stanton, at Columbia, was working at Roosevelt and St. Luke's Hospitals in N.Y.C.

Ed Weeks is back at Columbia after a year off in the West and British Columbia.

Fall 1971

Still in military custody:

Rusty Barton says he is "trying to endure the Air Force as best I can." The job should be easier come January when Rusty begins a two-year England tour — which he admits he is "looking forward to."

Tony Dewitt is "now stationed in Berlin, temporarily out of the infantry (ahh!) and working in public relations." Tony has "reached the half-way mark in the Army" and plans to resume work on his Fletcher School Ph.D. in 1973. Meanwhile his "situation and living conditions are vastly improved over Infantry AIT (Advanced Individual Training), much to my delight."

Navy Lt. John Dirlam writes "from somewhere in the South China Sea (it all looks the same), where my destroyer steams in endless circles day after day in pursuit of some rather ill-defined objective. The routine here is unbelievably dull, and the boredom is only in part relieved by occasional port visits to such places as Japan, Hong Kong and the Philippines. The only positive note to be sounded is that there are now (August 9) only 269 days separating me from a return to civilian life."

"Once I've been freed, I can definitely foresee spending two or three months in Europe, just traveling around and reestablishing contact with reality. After that, a job in Boston appears likely, unless the lure of California proves too strong — it has much to offer to anyone under 30, but four years at Williams seems to have instilled a certain fondness for New England."

Another note from another Navy officer, Jack Graves, who writes on June 23 from "Commander Mine Force, United States Pacific Fleet," Long Beach:

"Upon the disestablishment of COMINEPAC on 30 June, I will leave for 31 weeks of training in San Francisco prior to being sent to Saigon as a naval intelligence liaison officer. The service would not give me an early out, and the choice was either go to Vietnam or go to sea, which I couldn't stand for a minute."

"One thing here seems odd. Although COMINEPAC is technically closing down, most of the officers attached here will be part of the succeeding COMINFLOT THREE and are redecorating their offices at vast expense. Many flaps occur each day as the various captains fight over who will get the admiral's leather chairs and so forth. I am sure, however, that all this is done thinking of the best interests of our nation's security."

Jack is "thinking of law school in September, 1973, if there is one."

Army Spec. 5 Mark Jacox trained this spring at Goodfellow Air Force Base, San Angelo, Texas. He was set to go in September to Sinop, Turkey, "which is on the Black Sea — it's like being sent off to a summer camp for twelve months where all the gear is broken except for the fishing poles." But later — "the gods have smiled — my orders were changed from Turkey to Berlin. I will serve out my tour there (I hope)."

Mike Pete, out of the Army, was last seen "working on his instrument, commercial and instructor pilot's licenses" somewhere in northern Virginia.

Jeff Petty is in "southern Maryland flying EC130's for the Navy. The Navy isn't all that bad, but southern Maryland is terrible. With any luck at all I'll be in Europe a good part of the time and D.C. the rest."

Earl Potter was in "Deep Sea Diving School, Washington, D.C., and headed for the Antarctic on a Coast Guard ice breaker as diving officer." Earl recently drove the Alaska and Trans-Canada Highways on the way back to the States and writes that "Words are lost on that wilderness. If we lose that we must lose ourselves as well." Earl saw Phil Recht in Norwalk, Conn., "soon to get out of the Navy. He plans to spend some time regathering his head."

Tom Stevens is "still in the Navy — living in

Smith '68 Ordained In Williamstown

The ordination of the Rev. William N. Smith '68 into the Christian ministry took place at the First Congregational Church in Williamstown on Sunday, Oct. 24.

The ordination was carried out by the Berkshire Association of the United Church of Christ, which had supervised Mr. Smith's three years of study at Harvard Divinity School and had granted him the standings leading to ordination. Mr. Smith is assistant dean of students at Harvard Divinity School.

During the ceremony a meditation on the function of Christian ministry in the world was given by Conrad A. van Ouwwerkerk, professor of religion at Williams. A welcome to the ministry was extended to Mr. Smith by Henry N. Flynt, Jr. '44, moderator of the church and director of financial aid at Williams.

Stockton and editing the base paper at the Naval Communication Station in San Francisco. He and his wife backpacked in the Sierras and traveled in the Pacific Northwest this summer, "looking for possible future homesites. Port Orford, Ore., looked good — no stop lights. Saw Ed Weeks at Yosemite National Park. He was working as a busboy at the Ahwanee Hotel and rock-climbing. Had a letter from Chris Robinson. He's teaching high school English and drama in Wilmington, Vt. He spent the summer traveling through Europe with friends." Eric Lukingbeal (ex-'68) taught tennis this summer, Tom writes, and planned on law school this fall at the University of Virginia, "where his wife, Nancy, will be going for her Ph.D. — in literature."

Scott Wylie's eleven-month Korea tour should end by Christmas. He's stationed about 35 miles northeast of Seoul, just south of the demilitarized zone. Scott plans a five-to-eight-week "cruise to Mexico in April, '72 — as a civilian."

Kent Van Allen "spent a terrible summer in Guantanamo Bay with the Navy" but is now at Harvard B School. He said he couldn't wait for a "return to New England and a civilian life."

Tom Nicholson's wife Cathy had a baby boy on Dec. 24. Tom is with Owens-Corning Fiberglas in Perrysburg, Ohio, where he has run into Bart Jones. He went sailing with Ned Perry in New England and saw Ed Nichols on a business trip. "A few months ago I found out that Roger Crafts is working for the same company I do."

Charlie Potts "had to get back to New England" so he quit his N.Y.C. job and became R. S. Pettigrew & Co.'s manufacturer's representative for western New England.

Garret Thornburg is in Jamaica as "managing director of Continental Development Ltd., a housing company building 300 homes in Montego Bay under the U.S. AID program."

Rod Maynard is "just back from two years with the Peace Corps in Nepal" and is trying to decide what he wants to do.

Doug Rae is still in the Peace Corps in Malaysia.

Spencer Beebe, who saw "Dr. Rags all bloody at Denver General Hospital," is now sailing his 30-foot ketch to the Galapagos.

Mat Lyon's card addressed to Berkeley came back with "Don't live here" scrawled on it.

And Bill Roensing's was returned with "forward expired."

Gentlemen, where are you?

A late card from Phil Recht announced that he hopes to be out of the Navy by Christmas.

And a late and special edition of the York (Maine) County Coast Star announced that Star (pun intended) reporter George Schelling married staffer Carolyn Kimberly of Upper Jay, N.Y., on Aug. 14. George and crew made over the front and back pages of the Star and filled them with some very funny copy. Page one bannered: "Kimberly, Schelling set for moon shot; all systems go." The tag line was "World watches anxiously . . ." and the drop head: "Jersey schoolmarm weds Downeast muckraker." One of the backgrounders on George referred to the "heavier crew for his annual cruises on Penobscot Bay," namely: Dick Forman, Mark Sullivan, Jim Boynton, John Palmer, Ben Guy, and Rob Foster — most of whom were at the wedding.

I'll be back in Charlottesville this fall for what will probably be the last year at the University of Virginia. Do visit if you're in town: 122 Oakhurst Circle, off Jefferson Park Avenue.

An unexpected, unusually late editor's deadline permits me to add the following, compiled from lately received cards:

Bob Chambers "spent the month of May traveling all over Europe" and "talked to Steve Bradley a few days ago; he's in Buffalo." Bob says "should have my master's in music in another year here at U. of Mich; will be teaching music theory . . . this fall — gasp!"

John Fulkerson "spent six weeks researching at Yale," where he's in med school, "and six weeks in the U.S. Public Health Service in Fort Defiance, Ariz."

Bob Gault "traveled through Western U.S." with a friend from Michigan Law; Bob is clerking for the federal court in Seattle.

Sterling Green broke a long silence by writing that he is a minister at the United House of Prayer for All People, and "an employee" of the Labor Department in Washington. Sterling says he "ran into my namesake, Sterling Lloyd, on a city bus in D.C. He is completing studies on city planning."

Hal Marchik is in Belmont, Mass., and working in Cambridge.

Bill Pete, who became a civilian in July, traveled in Japan and Hawaii and played golf until September, when he began Berkeley B School.

Jim Roe, second-year Harvard B School and a Harvard Law research assistant, saw Dobby West "on his way to U of Minn Law School."

"From Christmas 1970 until now" Vic Smith has been on a "world trip" with his family. Vic continued his theology studies abroad and last May received his master's from BU theology school. Vic says "Navy chaplaincy is the next major move. I'm in paper-processing now. You know what that's like?"

Dave Snyder is in year four at Penn Med School. Dave married Diane Canter in June and honeymooned in Europe. (Pancho was best man; others there were Howie Steinberg, Mark Duffy and Jane and Al Sklaver.)

Jeff Walker left the Navy in January (he was the USS Loyalty's engineering officer) and is now at Penn Architecture School and working for a Philadelphia architectural firm.

Carl Wies summered in Aspen, "building a house with Yale architecture classmates." Carl is in his "last term" at Yale this fall. He reported seeing Bruce Simon in Colorado.

Bob Wilson saw Bob Wall in Charleston; both are in the Medical University of South Carolina.

The Alumni Office wrote me of the death of Jim Madison. My sympathy and, I am sure, that of the whole class, go out to his family and his closest friends.

Fall 1971

Editor's Notes:

William C. Whitman has enrolled at Thunderbird Graduate School of International Management, Glendale, Ariz.

The following members of the Class of 1968 are on the "lost list." If you know of their whereabouts, please inform the Society of Alumni: Peter B. Abrahams and Michio Hamano.

'69

President, Johan L. Hinderlie; Secretary, Eric D. Kelly, P.O. Box 12, Collingswood, N.J. 08108, Agent, Lowell S. Smith

Secretary Kelly reports:

"Lost" '69ers reduced their own numbers a bit this fall as we had cards from several for the first time in months.

Tom Gustafson reports that he is living in New Haven because he is going to Yale—as good a reason as any for living there. Tom has just started the doctoral program in economics.

Happiest note of all was from Jack Jacobs at the U. of Texas: "I tell people who ask me what I do for a living that I'm retired. I get a small pension from the U. simply for studying so I spend most of my time putting in the yard or playing the guitar. Still haven't any word from Marc Rogers."

Taking a break from theology, Ron Goyette spent the summer working on construction in Pittsfield. Ron reports that he has seen the Petke family and concludes, "If I don't get thrown out, I shall become a priest."

Chris Kinnell recently gave his first sermon, entitled "The Dirt Between Your Toes." Chris is living in Washington and Baltimore while attending seminary and working as an intern in a local church.

President Johan Hinderlie, also a seminarian these days, offered this question and response: "What's been the most fun or exciting thing you've done in the last year? I have seen a number of kids who have changed their lives, i.e., given them to Christ. This has been the most exciting experience. The most fun, perhaps, was skiing at Vail this spring."

From Fort Lee, N.J., Bob Grace reports that he will soon be a father. Now entering his third year at Columbia Law, Bob spent the summer doing a "file search" for CBS. He reports that he saw Craig Townsend in June and that Craig was married on Aug. 7 to Darlene Dance in California. The Townsends then headed off to Europe for a honeymoon.

"Over half way" to receiving his masters in education at Xavier U is Jack Heckscher, who reports that he is also teaching science (3-6). Jack says he has seen Red Jeffrey and Fred Gramlich and says of Fred, "smear'd him in tennis, naturally." Fred, however, does not hold a grudge and writes on his card, "I just would like this opportunity to tell Jack Heckscher that Mel (Dunn) and Sever (sp? Fred, you've got to work on that handwriting if you expect us to pass on your messages) have decided to get married this spring and I hope he can make it to Boston then."

Smitty Hopkins, now a med student at Columbia, sends his regards to Bill Hoffman. Smitty chose med after he "decided that the ministry could get along without me." Also around New York is long-unheard-from Eric Koster. He reports that he married Gloria Bussell (yes, Bennington-freaks, she was/is a senior there) and will start law school at Hofstra this fall.

Lots of news from Henry Walker, who married Theresa Peace (Wheaton '70) in August. Margie and Bob Ware '70, Randy and Cliff Low, Frank Ferry, Bob Young and Jim Miller '70 were among the contingent at the wedding. Henry reports that Cliff is still teaching near Baltimore and that Frank has taken up his teaching post at his alma mater, Glen Rock High. Bob is taking a year off from med school for research.

The bridegroom writes that he has been teaching a course all summer and, yes, he did show up for it at 8 a.m. the day after his wedding. The honeymoon was delayed until late August.

Chip Broadhurst asks that I send him a list of "who is where." Here it is, Chip. Main reason it is not more complete is that some people (like Chip for the last two years) don't realize that their classmates might wonder where they are and don't send in their postcards. Anyway, Chip is in his second year at Harvard Business, and he and June are living at Four Circuit Road in Chestnut Hill. Chip has also seen Rob MacDougall but sends no news of him.

Two-thirds through with BU Law is Lee Griffith, who spent the summer in the law department of John Hancock Mutual Life. Lee reports, "Had a ball at Tom Parker's wedding—saw Jon Moore, Bob Bearman '70. Plan to spend a week in Maine canoeing and fishing with Sandy Smith."

Keith Edwards has nearly finished his third year at Duke Med. He spent the summer doing medical work with the Indians in the central highlands of Guatemala.

Another seminarian is Rick Stovall, who is leaving the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Kentucky to finish his B.D. at Union. Rick married Bonna Fay Whitten, also a seminary student, several months ago.

Randy Boyd welcomes visitors at UVA—"I am alive and well due to my legal education being two-thirds over." Just starting law school is Dave Grant. He just finished his masters and will begin work at Southern Cal Law this fall. He and Carol are living in Alhambra and report seeing Carl Watras and his wife.

Heard from two lieutenants this time. Lanny Maxwell writes "I'm getting an early-out from the Navy (about 18 months' worth) so will be out sometime this summer. Future plans—??? Anything looks good."

First Lt. Hank Lammerts reports that he will be out of the Army in March. Until then he is on a "hardship tour" at Ft. Bragg. Hank says he will be headed for Europe to do "very little constructive" at the end of his tour. Don Spaeth has been living with him but heads off for Korea as an MP soon.

Just around. John Halbrooks writes that he welcomes visitors anytime, but he doesn't say where. Roy Gunter "just got out of the Army and Vietnam in April. Will be going to law school next fall. Currently plan to marry Mary R. Bigoness (next door neighbor) in June of '72." Sounds like a big year.

From Newport Paul Harsch reports, "I'm doin' the best that I can." And Joel Morse '68 sends a New York Times headline that reads "Storm Brings Lull to War in Vietnam," and adds his congratulations to Jocko.

Ramsay Weit (cleverly disguised as mild-mannered "Ralph Gomphears") queries, "What's been happening in the Rich Wayne story?" Meanwhile mild-mannered Rick Renner (cleverly disguised as) reports that Ramsay has been in North Adams working for the Northern Berkshire Community Action Agency. Rick says he has been "hiding" in Vermont, living in Bennington and teaching in Wilmington. This year he's going to relax and next year go to "architecture school or something like that."

What '69er would write that he is "conspiring to overthrow the cosmos" from his parents' home? Bruce Campbell, of course. Bruce would like to hear from John Freeman, George Scarola and Mace Rosenthal.

Tom Gardner sent us a new address: 16 Comstock Place, Seattle. Anybody know what he's doing? Also on the West Coast is Mark Dempsey who is "hanging out in Berkeley." Mark attended Emmett Fremaux's wedding to Lani Crawford this summer. He also saw Paul Thayer at the fete.

Perry Griffin writes, "Have really degenerated since I left Williams. Couldn't get a job with "the bank" so I have become a full-time trout fly-tier and fishing guide in Aspen. Hope to become a baptized Jehovah's Witness this fall. What's worse, I'm skiing Jackson, Wyo., this winter with an Amherst man. Help."

Also in Colorado is Wayne Eckerling, who studied mountaineering with Outward Bound and then was a student teacher for them. He also taught environmental education in Montana for the summer and has returned to Denver to teach high school social studies in the public schools.

Pat Dunn is reading a lot of newspapers and stealing copies of Lindsay press releases for his personal use, all under the guise of working for the commissioner of parks and recreation of N.Y.C. Smitty Hopkins was among Pat's nonpatronage (heaven forbid) friends working there this summer.

Full-fledged banker Fletcher Clark asks, "Whatever happened to Jim Ebin?" Fletcher is presumably still with New England Merchants in Boston.

Denny Chapman has left VISTA to work for "Ralph Nader in Connecticut, organizing a state-wide public interest research and lobbying organization."

Also reforming a bit of the world is Mike Himowitz, who is still a reporter with the Providence Journal. He and Paula are "now settled down to a life of domestic bliss in beautiful downtown Cranston, R.I." Mike attended Tom Goodbody's wedding and saw John Hayes, Keith Cunningham, Geoff Wickwire, Jim Hodgson and Jimmy Dunn. "Dave Whittlesey, believe it or not, performed the ceremony (after a session with a J.P. made it legal)." Mike also reports that fellow Journalist Dave Reid was recently assigned to expose "package tours" and took one to Nassau at company expense as part of the research.

Mike Katzenberg reports that he is now "retired" from teaching in Stowe, Vt., and starting a new vocation—bartending. Mike just flunked his draft physical.

Another budding broker in the class is Tom Willmott, who began work with Foster and Adams in Scotia, N.Y., this fall. He and his wife, Desi, are living at 501 Saratoga Road in Scotia. Tom would like to hear from Keith Grimson.

Dave Hadden, Jr. was recently named an assistant manager at the Norfolk County Trust Co. He'll be working with the credit department of the bank's Brookline branch. He is living in Chestnut Hill (if anyone is confused, those are all in Mass.).

Still in Daley Country, Paul Kessler writes he is a "staff associate of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals." He says the job and his bachelor life are both "great."

Tom Goodbody wrote to give his own side of his wedding story. It added little, except the bride's name, Sandra Toll. Tom has started work as a reporter for the Inquirer (Philadelphia) and your sec noted at least one "Body" by-line in his first week of work. Tom and Sandy are at 4725 Cedar Ave. in Philadelphia.

"Still performing chores for NYAR National Guard and Rdrs Digest" is Bob Whitton, who adds, "Disperse (sic) one, prize the other."

Steve Hicks is still teaching at Pine Cobble but has changed his residence to Pownal. And far from the purple valley is Mike Claypool, who is serving in the Peace Corps in Sierra Leone.

I am happily learning to be a student again at Penn Law (joint program with city planning). See John Freeman, now a third-year student, frequently. John spent last spring working for a consumer group in Washington (with credit from Penn) and clerked on some public service cases for a D.C. law firm for the summer. Joe Sanson-brenner '70, a second-year man, occasionally strolls through the halls. He spent his summer touring the country by car.
